Conferees Agree Upon Local Option Rent Clause

Provision, as Newly Worded, Hailed as Better Than Those In 2 Bills Passed

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senate-House conferees on rent legislation last night agreed to permit cities, towns and villages order decontrols if the State Governor approves.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Burnet Maybank (D., S. C.) and Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.), subcommittee chairman, both declared the newly worded "local option" provision better than found in the bills passed by either House.

Administration leaders predicted the President would give speedy approval to the measure.

No Agreement on Duration

The conference committee reached no agreement on duration of rent control, and has scheduled a meeting for this morning. Permission was given by the Senate for the filing of a report up to midnight Sunday.

Likewise, the conferees failed to reach a compromise on another major difference between the Senate's provision for two automatic 5 per cent increases and the House provision for "a reasonable return on a reasonable value" to landlords.

The newly worded "local option" clause provides that the Housing Expediter shall terminate controls when notified that the incorporated city, town or village has taken due action calling for decontrol. The local community must hold a public hearing after 10 days' notice before taking such action, and must find that "there no longer exists such a shortage in rental housing accommodations as to require rent control."

The conferees agreed that when such action by a local community decontrols the major portion of a defense-rental area, the housing expediter shall decontrol any unincorporated locality in the remainder of such area.

Accept States' Rights Section

House conferees also agreed to accept the "States rights" section of the Senate bill which gives the State legislature power to decontrol any area within its borders.

Maybank announced also that the conferees had agreed to give the Federal housing expediter a free hand in restoring rent control in any area he decontrols after March 31. But except on recommendation of the local rent advisory board, he could not do so in any area where controls had been dropped before that date.

Under this agreement, Rent Control Administrator Tighe E. Woods can go ahead with his plans to decontrol some 100 areas after March 31. He has told Congress he would do that if he had the power to recontrol them if necessary.

In another decision the conferees agreed to extend until June 30, 1949, the so-called Title VI

Eisenhower Ill Of Stomach Disorder

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is ill with a painful stomach disorder that will require him to take a "complete rest," and which medical men say could prove to be very serious.

The Columbia University president is suffering from "acute gastro-enteritis," it was announced. Doctors are undecided whether this condition—an "extreme case of upset stomach"—is the result of a virus or some other cause.

If it is caused by a virus, an informed official told The Washington Post, Eisenhower may be back on duty within a few weeks. If the cause is something else, he may be in for serious trouble.

The general, now serving temporarily as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and chief military adviser to the President and Secretary of Defense, has been confined to his hotel suite since Monday.

Ike has been forced to cancel all official and social engagements—including attendance at the Blair House dinner for Winston Churchill Thursday night, the national military establishment said.

Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder, USA, retired, Eisenhower's physician, diagnosed his disorder as a severe case of acute gastro-enteritis, a very painful stomach ailment, resulting from inflammation.

Medical men say that acute gastro-enteritis is an inflammation resulting from an oversecretion of gastric juices, which works on the lining of the stomach or intestines. It can result from food poisoning or other virus, in which case a rest will produce a cure. If resulting from hypertension, overwork or other causes, it can be much more serious.

Snyder reported that the general's progress is such that he probably can leave Washington early next week for a rest.

House Revives Starved-Down Pension Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The nine-lived Rankin veterans' pension bill, starved down to economy size, was revived again yesterday in the House.

After "killing" the Rankin original, the House found the new model on its doorsteps when it reconvened yesterday.

Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.), who vowed Thursday that veterans' pensions were dead for this session, introduced the mild, new version "by request."

Stripped down to little more than what needy World War I veterans are now eligible to receive in disability payments at age 65, the bill, Administration leaders conceded privately, will pass if it comes to the floor in that form.

Instead of $90-a-month pensions at age 65 to other than dishonorably discharged veterans of World Wars I and II, regardless of need, as the late Rankin original prescribed, the reincarnated bill proposes:

1. Payment of $72-a-month pensions to only those honorably discharged veterans of World War I who can show need when they reach the age of 65.

2. Provisions that the World War I oldsters must earn less than $2000 if single or $3000 if they have dependents in order to qualify at 65.

Under Veterans Administration regulations, needy World War I veterans are now paid $72 a month if they have reached 65 and have

'Sally' Given 10 to 30 Years For Treason

Also Fined $10,000; New Trial Refused; Appeal Notice Filed

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars yesterday was sentenced to serve "not less than 10 and not more than 30 years" in jail for treason in Nazi propaganda broadcasts.

The sentence imposed on the silver-haired, 48-year-old native of Portland, Me., by Federal Judge Edward M. Curran also carried a $10,000 fine. The fine is subject to voiding through swearing of a "pauper's oath."

His sentence followed rejection by Judge Curran of a motion for a new trial and after Miss Gillars had protested her conviction.

Curran touched off the outburst when he asked the defendant: "Do you care to say anything before I pronounce sentence?"

Will Never Understand

Standing rigidly by the counsels' table, her head high and chin outthrust, Miss Gillars began boldly:

"Well, I didn't realize I could have a chance to say anything. I shall never be able to understand why I was found guilty. Vision of Invasion (a horror play with a defeatist theme in which Miss Gillars had a leading role and which constituted the overt act of treason of which she was convicted) was written by Professor Koischwitz . . . he played in it. Professor Koischwitz was indicted for treason in 1943. I believe your honor signed the indictment. . . ."

"I was United States Attorney for the District then," Curran interjected. "I may have."

All At Same Microphone

"He (Koischwitz) was indicted in absentia with Jane Anderson and Delaney (two other Americans who also participated in German broadcasts). They were exonerated through lack of evidence and the nature of the material used advising fighting with the Germans against the Russians . . ."

Miss Gillars then switched back to the invasion play and referred to three other actors who had appeared with her in the show and

Gaming Raids Cap Months Of Jury Work

Prosecutor Employs Unique Method in Use of U. S. Agents

Yesterday's swift series of gambling raids was the first direct and dramatic result of nearly a year's investigation by a special grand jury.

Unique in execution, the raids marked the first time an "outside" law enforcement group—United States marshals in this case—has ever conducted such operations in the District without knowledge or assistance of Metropolitan Police.

When United States Attorney George Morris Fay, on April 28, 1948, called for the special investigation, he estimated that gambling in the Washington area involved a "take" of more than 100 million dollars a year.

Highly Publicized

The grand jury set about its task in the glare of intense publicity, which continued for several months.

At its outset the inquiry brought a general "close-down" of the more openly conducted numbers and horse-racing betting establishments in the city.

A few weeks later, however, the gambling profession decided the investigation was purely a publicity weapon unsupported by action, and began to resume normal operations.

This attitude, it was disclosed, "set up" the situation that permitted yesterday's sudden action.

Planning of the raids, coupled with discontinuance of telephone service to suspected gambling spots, was carefully worked out in weeks of study. Months ago, telephone company officials promised support to any such venture involving their facilities.

The number of places selected for raiding, it was learned, was limited only by the number of U. S. marshals available to Fay, who was obviously determined to keep the purge a wholly Federal affair.

This apparently was his method of showing what can be done against gambling with a concentrated attack, secretly organized, to guard against "leaks."

Before the grand jury was sworn in on May 17, 1948, Metropolitan Police had contended their at-

35 Deputies Invade Five D. C. Places, 3 In Maryland

Prosecutor Directs Utilities to Suspend 300 Telephones and 26 Wire Machines

The United States Attorney's office threw a series of body blows into organized gambling here yesterday, arresting 28 men in eight big gaming raids in Maryland and the District.

The raids were conducted without the knowledge of Metropolitan Police or county law enforcement officials.

The raids were a spectacular eruption of the long-smoldering grand jury investigation of gambling conducted here by United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

After the raids, Fay announced that he had asked the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to suspend service on 300 telephones being used in gambling operations and had asked the Western Union to stop service on 26 tickers in similar use.

35 Deputies Make Raids

The raids were made by 35 deputy marshals led by three former FBI agents specially retained by Fay and members of his staff.

Fay said warrants were obtained from United States commissioners here and in Bethesda authorizing three raids in Prince Georges County, Md., and five in the District.

This is where the raids were made:

Statewide Sports News Distributors, 3701 Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, Md.

A suspected gambling headquarters in a house at 4310 46th st., Bladensburg, Md.

Barbour's News Stand, 427 10th st. nw.

The Macedonian Coffee House, 746 9th st. nw.

A suspected gambling place at 1504 Oates st. ne.

Sam Beard Absent

Sam Beard, local gambling kingpin, is reputed boss of the Statewide News outfit, Fay's office said, but he was not among those present when raiders battered down two doors through a closet to gain entrance.

The raiding party reported it removed "a truckload" of numbers slips from the place.

A big haul also was made at the 46th st. address in Bladensburg, reputed headquarters of William (Snag) Lewis, described by Fay as another of the big-time local operators. Lewis was among those arrested. Lewis told the raiding party he had just returned from Hot Springs, Ark.

Reporters peering through the windows of the two-family frame house in Bladensburg could see a large room, about 20 feet by 20 feet, paneled in knotty pine. They counted two ticker tape machines, at least four telephones and eight adding machines.

The raiders said it was a "feeder" place, a spot for runners to turn in numbers and horse bets.

Of the raids made in the District, the one at Hammel's Restaurant came as the biggest surprise. One of the best-known steak houses in Washington, its dining clientele includes many top Government officials.

However, District police, who had no word that the raids were to be carried out, were equally surprised by the raid at Barbour's newsstand, across the street from Hammel's.

Police admitted they have been receiving complaints about the newsstand and Capt. Howard V.

Text of U. S. Attorney's Statement

Fay Describes Gambling Inquiry

Text of the statement made by United States Attorney George Morris Fay after yesterday's raids:

On May 17, 1948, after discussing the matter with the Attorney General on numerous occasions, we were authorized to request a special grand jury. Our purpose was to investigate to see how to curtail and control the gambling racket, which at that time we estimated at a 100 million dollar a year business here.

Also, we hoped to prevent other violations of D. C. statutes by reason of racketeers operating openly here. Instances of violence stemming from gambling were the Rocway Towers shooting and the Brass Rail shooting.

We had complaints of hijacking by opposing racketeers and these incidents were not reported to police, because the racketeers settled their differences by their own brand of law. Racketeers were knocking off their messengers as they sought to cross State lines.

There were examples of embezzlements and larcenies occurring because very reasonable and good citizens were losing their earnings to gamblers.

I recall the recent shooting on 9th st. where a mob of Baltimore racketeers encountered a Washington crowd after gambling in the Mayflower and Ambassador Hotels. There was also the attack with a loaded gun at Kadan's place on Woodley place, and that man has a bad record, incidentally.

Also, there was the James brothers case involving a $60,000 safecracking where it was stated the proceeds in part were gotten from gambling at the race tracks.

GEORGE MORRIS FAY, District Attorney who led gaming raids

There are several others we know.

There have been attempts to obstruct justice by intimidation of witnesses, attempts to bribe witnesses and these are the usual practices of racketeers.

Because of the interstate nature of the violations, the grand jury with its power of subpena, search and arrest could go beyond State lines and followed those it sought into Maryland and Virginia.

Principally because of the attention focused on the grand jury, we received a wide and enthusiastic response from the general public, and much of our information came from two types of individuals.

One, was the citizen who was sick of seeing the law disregarded when alleged petty gamblers who actually were in fact big business gamblers could drive around in new automobiles and speedboats, live in expensive properties, visit the best hotels in the most expensive resorts without any apparent means of livelihood whatsoever.

Second, there were the products of broken homes where the husbands had taken from them their paychecks week after week by some alleged petty gamblers.

After we presented the first group of witnesses to the grand jury, it became apparent that methods of professional gamblers were unusually complex.

The key to the whole thing was the communication center, radio, telegraph, ticker and telephone and recently the bookie joints have shown considerable interest in the television because it is making available to them the telecast of races themselves, the tote boards showing how much odds on each horse, the bets, the winner pay.

We made a chart which I will show tomorrow showing that ordinary investigative techniques would not get the top men. As soon as we learned them, we referred all backers, those who pay off on the hits in their own syndicates, to the Internal Revenue people for their investigation.

It was indeed difficult to trace the bet to the top man, and how

Egg Transplanted

Scientist Finds Way to Make Scrub Cows Bear Prize Calves

San Antonio, Tex., March 25 (AP). A breeding experiment in which scrub cows would produce high quality calves was reported today to be approaching the practical stage.

The process consists of transplanting the unborn calf of a high grade cow to the womb of a scrub. The purpose is to produce more meat and more milk per animal on the same amount of feed at a saving of time.

The method is termed ova (egg) transplantation by its originators. Ray Umbaugh, a 28-year-old scientist, has been developing the process seven years.

An egg from a fine quality cow is fertilized by artificial insemination. The egg is then taken from the fine animal and placed in the uterus of the common cow.

Umbaugh cuts through to the fallopian tubes of the donor cow. He removes the fertilized egg and places it in the tubes of the scrub cow by a similar operation. The fallopian tubes lead from the ovaries to the uterus.

The fine cow is free to produce more eggs.

Umbaugh said the average cow can produce 23 eggs a month.

He has been successful in transplanting the egg and starting its growth in the host cow. As yet he has been unable to get the host mother to carry the transplanted calf long enough for a normal birth.

Hoover Group Recommends U. S. Tax Structure Revision

The Hoover Commission yesterday urged that the Nation's entire tax structure be revised to reduce overlapping while leaving adequate resources for State and local governments.

In two other sections of a three-part report, the commission suggested:

1. Establishment of an Administration of Overseas Affairs to take over the complicated world responsibilities now shared by 16 agencies and subagencies.

2. That President Truman be given authority to coordinate Federal scientific research through a strengthened interdepartmental organization, and to establish a National Science Foundation.

Pepper Asks More Funds For Health

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) urged an increase of about 34 million dollars yesterday in the money cited by the House for Federal health programs in the year beginning July 1.

This would raise by more than half the cash outlay of $65,893,000 provided in the House bill for grants for local public health services, hospital construction and cancer, heart, dental and mental health programs.

Pepper told a Senate appropriations Subcommittee, in stressing what he called "the gravity of the Nation's health problems," that an estimated 27 billion dollars is lost annually because of sickness and disabiity.

He recommended that the amount voted by the House for Federal grants to aid in establishing and maintaining local public health services be raised from $13,600,000 to the full $24,408,000 proposed by the Budget Bureau.

In this we was joined by Senator Stennis (D., Miss.), who called the House's cut "unwise economy."

The second largest increase asked by Pepper was for the national heart program. Pepper said the $7,726,000 voted by the House should be raised to $16,392,000.

Besides larger cash outlays for health work, Pepper urged the committee to increase contract authorizations of 86 million dollars in the House bill by about $20,800,000.

Stennis also appealed to the committee to provide $28,500,000 for Federal grants to the States for vocational education. The House voted $19,842,760, the amount recommended by the Budget Bureau.

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—For the second time, the Senate Education Committee today approved a bill to set up a State advisory commission on education.

The committee defeated an amendment to take high schools and elementary schools from the commission's jurisdiction.

The bill previously had been reported out favorably only to be recommitted for consideration of the amendment.

Senator Ellison (R., Baltimore) said the measure would set up "a super board" which "may be a thorn in the side" of school officials.

Denounced as "Snooper" Unit

Educators have denounced the proposed advisory commission as a "snooper" unit.

Predicting a floor fight, Ellison said he would offer his amendment when the measure is reported out.

Senator Kimble (R., Allegany) was the only committee member to vote against the bill as it carried on a voice vote.

Another Senate committee balked at a bill to put State employes under the Workmen's Compensation Act on the grounds it also would provide benefits for Senators.

Pending further study, the committee deferred action on Deputy Chief Comptroller Joseph McCusker's request that it reconsider an unfavorable report voted yesterday.

Lawyers Confused

McCusker said the State makes private employers take out accident insurance to pay the hospital bills for industrial injuries, but State employes have no similar protection.

"The bill would include members of the Legislature and everyone else," said Senator Hoff (R., Carroll).

The committee also wanted to know whether public school teachers are considered State employes. Acting Chairman Stromberg (D., Howard) complained that six "confused" lawyers on the committee couldn't agree on the answer.

McCusker agreed to an amendment which would make the law apply only to the same hazardous occupations as listed in the private employers' law, excluding legislators and stenographers who fall off revolving chairs.

Court Weighs Suit by Union Against AEC

District Court Judge F. Dickinson Letts yesterday took under advisement a plea that he dismiss a million-dollar damage and injunction suit filed by the United Electrical Workers (CIO) against the Atomic Energy Commission and General Electric.

The suit arose last fall when the Atomic Energy Commission ordered General Electric to cancel its collective bargaining agreement with the union in the GE Schenectady plants engaged in atomic projects. The commission ordered the step, it said, as a security measure because of alleged pro-Communist affiliations of certain officers of the union.

The union charged in its suit for damages, and a petition for an injunction against the AEC order, that its contractual and constitutional rights had been violated. The Government argued the AEC had the authority to take the drastic action. General Electric asserted it had no alternative but to comply with the order.

Senators Back Dental Health Research Fund

Three Senators joined health officials yesterday in urging a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to approve money for a two-million-dollar Dental Health Research Building at Bethesda, Md.

They asked a $100,000 cash appropriation, and $1,900,000 in contract authority, for inclusion in the Labor-Federal Security appropriation bill.

Testifying for the fund were Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.). Others who testified for it included Dr. Carl O. Flagstad of the American Dental Association, Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele and Assistant Surgeon General Bruce D. Forsyth.

Citizens Protest Bill On Anne Arundel Police

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 25.—Charges that a bill to revamp the Anne Arundel County police department contains a clause under which County Manager William S. Coburn could be fired, were made here today.

The charge was made by about 12 citizens who registered protests against the pending legislation with the county legislative delegation.

As it stands, the bill makes the manager a member of the board of police examiners and provides that he may be removed from office for failing to perform his duties properly as a board member.

The citizens group also urged that a provision in the bill which assure Police Chief John H. Souers of retention in office, be deleted.

Air Force Plane Down in Arctic; 7 Aboard Safe

Edmonton, Alberta, March 25 (AP).—A twin-engined United States Air Force C-82 was reported today to have crash-landed in the Arctic during a blinding snowstorm.

All seven men aboard are safe and uninjured, a radio message from Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island said tonight. The message was received by search and rescue officials at Goose Bay, Labrador. Presumably the lost plane was engaged in supplying isolated weather stations in the Far North.

Westover Base reported the missing aircraft was carrying a crew of three or four, and may have gone down somewhere near the southern end of Baffin Island.

The RCAF spokesman here said the plane crash-landed last night.

County Home Bars College For Paying Resident, Only 84

Danville, Ind., March 25 (AP).—An 84-year-old paying resident of the Hendricks County Home can't go to college to continue his education. Authorities won't let him.

The octogenarian scholar, James L. Glascock, is being confined to the county home by the superintendent, Ira Plasters. The superintendent said Glascock's going to nearby Canterbury College made other residents want similar liberties.

The superintendent said one inmate grew so resentful he beat up two other inmates.

"We're not running a hotel," said County Commissioner Hursel Disney. (Glascock pays $7 a week to the home.)

Disney said the county commissioners thought Glascock's going to school "was foolish for a man with no future to his life."

"We don't have anything against him," Disney added, "but he is no different than the rest. We have rules."

The commissioners postponed decision until April 4.

Canterbury president, Father Douglas R. Maclaurey, says Glascock "is a big inspiration to all of us."

Glascock, a former teacher and a veteran of two wars, maintains he is not an inmate. "I am a resident," he says, because he pays his own way and also the "keep" of a blind, 56-year-old son at the home.

"I guess they just want me to sit here until I die," he said.

Development Plan Opposed In Southeast

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Residents of Marshall Heights yesterday opposed a redevelopment plan for their section of Southeast Washington, pleading instead for extension of city water and sewer lines and road improvements.

They complained that failure to provide such facilities has contributed to the creation of unsightly, unsanitary structures.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission, framers of the plan, and the District government have contended that building of water and sewer lines was impractical because of difficult topographic conditions and the little possibility of recouping costs through assessments.

Everett L. Edmond, president of the Marshall Heights Civic Association, told how a few individuals bought land in what was then a wilderness, cleared it and built shelters "with their bare hands."

Their Petitions Denied

"Each hoped that some day he could get a loan and build a comfortable home," he said. "The area lacked paved streets, water, lights and sewers, and so one by one they would go down to the District Building and ask for extension of sewers and water lines and for street improvements.

"Sometimes two or more would go, and make the request. Once a petition was gotten up and carried to the District Building, but the answer was always negative."

Howard D. Woodson, civil engineer retained as consultant by the association, submitted a plan for installing sewer and water lines through realignment of existing street patterns.

Charles F. A. Longus, president, Central Northeast Civic Association, drew applause and laughter when he noted that engineers were able to build water and sewer lines up the 13th st. nw. hill "where the big boys live."

Taken Under Advisement

Before the District Commissioners, who must approve the plan before funds may be requested, took the matter under advisement, spokesmen for various business and civic groups counseled delay.

The Home Builders Association of Washington offered an alternative plan. The Washington Board of Trade and the Federation of Citizens Associations urged further study. The Washington Real Estate Board recommended inclusion of additional row houses so that the land could be used more intensively.

The plan was approved conditionally by the Federation of Civic Associations and unconditionally by the Washington Housing Association, the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the National Capital Hebrew Cemetery Association, which has cemeteries near Marshall Heights.

Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) announced yesterday the House Un-American Activities Committee had subpenaed Leo Fisher, Frank Borich and Timo Bobich of Pittsburgh, for hearings on the American Slav Congress.

The chairman said he was unable to identify the men further or say what connections, if any, they have with the Slav Congress.

The Slav Congress has been cited as subversive by Attorney General Clark.

Petition Asks Retention of School Head

Nearly 5000 signatures have been put on a petition urging reappointment of Arlington School Supt. Fletcher Kemp, it was learned yesterday.

Kemp will have completed 32 years of service in the post when his current four-year term ends June 30. The Arlington school board is held certain not to reappoint him.

Herbert L. Marcey of the Colonial Village Apartments, said he expects the petition to be presented to the school board meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at James Monroe School, 2300 Key blvd. By that time, Marcey estimated "we should have 8000 signatures."

Kemp yesterday declined to say whether he will be available for another four-year term, which would bring him to the retirement age.

The school board recently announced it was scouring the country for candidates for the superintendent's post. It must make the appointment by May 1.

Since the present board took office in January, 1948—the first elected board in county history—it has had several open clashes with Kemp.

Policeman Cleared Of Stealing $1225

A policeman accused of stealing $1225 himself while on a robbery case has been cleared after an investigation, Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett said yesterday.

The investigation followed an affidavit sworn out before an assistant United States attorney by a woman who said she saw a detective handle the money in a home in the 1300 block Ninth st. nw., on February 20. The place was being searched for money missing from the robbery of a safe in the home of Richard H. Beckley, retired detective sergeant, 1800 New Jersey ave. nw.

Results of the police department investigation were sent to George Morris Fay, United States district attorney. Fay said he called on the woman to give particulars and enlarge on her charges. She refused, he said, and he closed the case.

Running 5 Miles Minus Pants Held Penalty Enough

Boston, March 25 (U.P.).—Running five miles without pants is punishment enough for any man, a municipal court judge ruled today in a morals case.

"He worked out his own punishment," Judge Elijah Adlow said in placing on file a morals charge against the pantless sprinter, Theodore Zentackos, 33, of Dorchester.

Zentackos was seized by police in Roxbury early on March 16 as he loped along with his shirttails flapping in the breeze. He told police he fled without his pants when there came a knock on the door while he was visiting a married woman in her apartment.

Key Club Boys Told of Heavy Burdens Ahead

Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) told 2200 youths from 44 States and Canada yesterday that their generation would have to take over a heavy burden of responsibility in government now that a great part of the world depends on the United States.

He was welcoming the members of the Key Club International at the opening of their two-day sixth annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel. After opening talks and conferences, the boys went sightseeing in the afternoon and held a talent show at the Departmental Auditorium last night.

Senator Bricker said one burden which youth would have to take over was the "very, very heavy toll" of money spent in aiding other countries. The only source of wealth which can support such spending, he warned, is "human labor in the utilization of natural resources."

Bundy Bynum, 16, of Darlington, S. C., responding to Bricker's welcome, called for unity regardless of differences of politics or religion, warning that "we are targets of Communist propaganda."

The convention will be resumed at 9 a. m. today with an oratorical contest, followed by an address by Rear Admiral John H. Cassady, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for Air. Reports, elections of new officers, resolutions and other business in the afternoon will be followed by dinners and entertainment closing the convention tonight.

G. W. Expands Speech Rehabilitation Clinic

Expansion of the George Washington University speech rehabilitation clinic to meet demands for its services was announced yesterday by Prof. L. Poe Leggette, executive officer of the university's speech department.

The clinic offers private and group lessons for children and adults who have faulty articulation, difficulties in stuttering, lisping, nassality resulting from cleft palate and foreign accent are offered.

Traffic Ticket System Hailed As One of Best

The Traffic Court Conference Committee gave the Police Department a unanimous pat on the back yesterday for its system of issuing traffic tickets.

The report said the present procedure of making out traffic tickets in triplicate, one to the offender, another at the precinct station, and the third copy turned in to the policeman's commanding officer, is "one of the best in the country."

Committee member Harry S. Wender added his personal opinion that the system is "virtually foolproof."

Publicity Called Important

"More important than anything else is the fact that publicity is given to cases which are adjusted," Wender said.

He added that he himself received publicity when a ticket was adjusted for him about a year ago, and "the fact that I knew the Inspector (Arthur E. Miller) very well didn't keep my name from getting in the newspapers."

In another action yesterday, the committee voted to investigate the Police Department's right to set collateral in minor cases—chiefly traffic offenses—scheduled for Municipal Court trial.

Committee member Nathan Lubar, District lawyer, offered the resolution authorizing the investigation after suggesting that setting collateral is a judicial function and that the District Code merely authorizes police to "take" collateral, he pointed out.

Police now must observe a list of minimum collaterals established by Municipal Court judges for various offenses, Inspector Miller told the group, but can set collateral up to $300.

3 Networks Refuse Time To Answer 'Great Hour'

New York, March 25 (AP).—Three radio networks—two of them saying that world relief is not a controversial subject—have refused a religious group's request for equal time to answer a radio program featuring President Truman and movie stars. They are ABC, CBS and MBS.

The program, the "One Great Hour," is scheduled for 10 p. m. (EST) Saturday. The broadcast, sponsored by a number of major church organizations, will ask Americans to attend their own churches Sunday morning and give donations for war sufferers abroad.

The American Council of Christian Churches asked for equal radio time. The group opposes some policies of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, one of the groups sponsoring the broadcast.

CIO Union Rejects Order for Merger

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, March 25 (AP).—Shouting delegates to the CIO Farm Equipment Workers national convention tonight rejected unanimously an order directing merger of their union with the CIO United Auto Workers

A resolution "soundly rejecting" the directive, issued by the CIO national executive board last November, was passed by acclamation.

The action came in the face of a telegraphed appeal from CIO President Philip Murray in Pittsburgh, Pa. Murray urged FE to relinquish its charter and affiliate with the UAW.

Murray warned that if FE defied the merger directive the CIO executive board would at its next meeting "take proper action" to enforce it.

Led by FE President Grant Oakes of Chicago, a series of speakers shouted their defiance.

"By our action we will show Murray and Reuther that they are not going to scare us," Oakes said. He voiced special criticism of Walter Reuther, head of the auto workers.

Oakes asserted FE would remain within CIO. He declared the national CIO executive board is without power to cancel FE's charter.

The resolution also called for an immediate FE drive to bring all farm equipment workers into FE. It asked the UAW, the United Steel Workers, the United Electrical Workers and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers to join in this campaign.

No speaks took the floor to oppose the resolution. Oakes said "the one voice against it" is that of Murray.

The resolution further called for a halt to UAW attempts to take over existing FE locals. Speakers made frequent reference to what they called "UAW goon squads."

London Editor Put in Jail for Vampire Story

London, March 25 (AP).—The editor of the London Daily Mirror was sent to prison for three months and the newspaper was fined £10,000 ($40,000) today for contempt of court in a story about a murder case.

The sentences were handed out by Lord Chief Justice Goddard after a hearing on a writ against the Mirror and its editor, Silvester Bolam, by attorneys for John George Haigh, defendant in the murder case.

The writ charged the Mirror had prejudiced Haigh's defense.

Referring to the story carried in the Mirror of March 4, Lord Goddard wondered: "How it can be possible for that man to obtain a fair trial after that which has been published in this paper?

"Not only does it describe him as a vampire and proceed to give reasons why they call him a vampire, but in addition to saying he has been charged with the particular murder of which he has been charged, these articles go on to say not merely that he is charged with other murders but that he has committed others and gives the names of persons, who, they say, he has murdered."

Bolam was taken to Brixton prison—where Haigh is awaiting trial on a charge that he murdered Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon.

Lord Goddard warned the Mirror, a tabloid which claims the world's greater circulation (over four million), against any future violations of the English law prohibiting publication of stories which might prejudice a trial."

"Let the directors beware," he said.

Goddard called the articles and photographs and headings a "disgrace to English journalism, violating every principle of justice and fair play."

He said the stories were printed not "as an error of judgment but as a matter of policy, pandering to sensationalism for the purpose of increasing the circulation of this paper."

Plant Safety Leaders Adopt Plan of Action

A three-point "Action Now" program was adopted here yesterday by the windup session of a three-day conference of 1200 industrial safety leaders from over the country.

The meeting, called at the behest of President Truman in a long-range move to cut the Nation's two-million-a-year industrial accident rate, made the following three recommendations:

1. The Governors of the 48 States should take the leadership in the Nation-wide fight to reduce industrial deaths and injuries.

2. The Governors should call State-wide conferences to implement the safety suggestions worked out by special committees of the President's National Conference.

3. The President should continue his National Conference on Industrial Safety on a permanent basis.

The final report declared that "accident prevention not only saves lives, suffering and economic loss, but its byproducts are better industrial relations, higher production efficiency, and better citizenship."

Storms Kill 6 in Mississippi And One in Texas; 54 Injured

Seven persons were killed and at least 54 injured by tornadoes and high winds Friday in Texas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The churning thunderstorms spun into the Plains States, threatening follow-up blows.

Six of the dead were in Mississippi and one in Texas.

An early morning tornado, which ripped up four communities near Greenville, Miss., killed three persons and injured at least 22.

Three other persons died in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Later in the day, an El Paso (Tex.) painted was blown off a roof by high winds during one of the worst sandstorms that city ever experienced.

In the little town of Desdemona, about 60 miles southwest of Fort Worth, another 18 persons were injured in a tornado.

Hike in Fares Asked

Montreal, March 25 (AP).—Canadian Railways today applied to the Federal Transport Board for a 15 per cent increase in first-class passenger fares. A 15 per cent federal tax on fares was repealed in the new budget presented to the House of Commons Tuesday.

Tax Man Takes Lewis' Place As Boyd Bogey

By The Associated Press

Safely by John L. Lewis at last, James J. Boyd still needed yesterday to get by the tax collector to get full reward for 15 months of payless work for the Government.

Finally sworn in Thursday as chief of the Bureau of Mines either (a) in spite of or (b) because of Lewis' opposition, Boyd's problem has shifted from (1) getting no pay to (2) getting too much at one time.

Too much from a tax standpoint, that is. He has been assured of $12,600 for his past work—$10,487 of it was handed to him immediately after he took his oath of office—as well as his $10,000-a-year salary from now on.

If he has to pay tax on the whole $22,600 as being one year's income, Boyd will end up at least several hundred dollars worse off than if he'd gotten the $12,600 back pay over the months he went unpaid.

The reason is, of course, that the percentage of tax rises with income and taxes received on $22,600 income for a single year are a lot more than taxes paid on the same amount when it is spread over two or three years.

The law provides that, in general, income is subject to tax in the year received, regardless of whether it was earned at some other time.

An exception that can favor Boyd—if the tax collector interprets it as covering his case—is for Government employes who can't be paid for "lack of funds appropriated to pay such renumeration."

Boyd was unable to draw pay in the past because objection from President Lewis of the United Mine workers kept him from being confirmed by the Senate and sworn in for over a year.

Peterson 'Homesick,' Will Not Run Again

Representative Peterson (D., Fla.) told the House yesterday he will not be a candidate for reelection. He said he plans a formal announcement Sunday.

Peterson told a reporter the reason he is quitting Congress after 16 years is that "I'm homesick."

He said he probably will practice law at Lakeland, Fla., where he has his home and an orange grove.

Old Baltimore Market Goes Up in Flames

Baltimore, March 25 (AP).—Nearly everyone in Baltimore has said at one time or another that the old Lexington Market would some day go up in a flash and just before dawn today it did.

The charred shell remained, except for a patch of burned off roof, but the 186 meat markets, vegetable stalls, and grocery stands packed into the main half of the building were wiped out.

Henry Hoenes, superintendent, estimated the damage at about five million dollars. He pointed out that the 148-year-old building was jammed with valuable refrigerating equipment and loaded with provisions for the week-end shopping days.

The site, in a widened stretch of Lexington st. in the heart of the downtown shopping district, has been a market place longer than the United States has been a republic. Part of the building was put up in 1803. For at least 20 years before that, it had been an assembly point for farmers who brought their meats and produce to town.

The fire was quick.

Two icemen, William Bayne and Charles D. Green, saw a flash up under the roof as they were icing a produce stall about 3:30 a.m. A moment later there was a wall of flame. They ran for alarm boxes and by the time they got back half the building was afire.

Six alarms brought nearly half the city's fire fighting equipment. It was late to do anything for the market. The firemen threw up a curtain of water between the blaze and the store buildings along Lexington st.

Mine Resumption Order Creates Minor Mystery

A mystery of minor proportions—on the level of "Who Struck John?"—zaffled the hierarchy of the United Mine Workers yesterday.

It appears that John L. Lewis' announcement to the miners to end their two-week "memorial period" and return to their pits on Monday was made public one day ahead of schedule.

Although UMW headquarters is here in Washington, the announcement was first disclosed in Pittsburgh Thursday. Three special delivery letters, in plain white envelope and bearing Pittsburgh postmarks, were delivered to the three major press associations in that city. But UMW officials, both here and Pittsburgh, deny sending out the news.

Meanwhile, the coal-carrying railroad, while laid off 70,000 workers while the 450,000 Eastern miners took the 14-day holiday, began calling their employes back to work.

Rules Issued On Federal Job Bias Protests

Federal agencies received a set of rules yesterday for handling complaints of discrimination in Government jobs because of race, religion, color or national origin.

The Government's fair employment program was ordered by President Truman last July.

The instruction sheet issued yesterday by the fair employment board of the Civil Service Commission is designed to give any Government worker who feels he is being discriminated against "a full opportunity to present his case."

The board emphasized that complainants are to receive a decision "without undue delay."

When dissatisfied with a decision made by his supervisor, the employe may appeal to "a deputy fair employment officer of the agency, to the fair employment officer in Washington, to the head of the agency, and, finally, to the fair employment board."

The mere handling of complaints is not enough to meet requirements of the President's order, the board said, adding: "There is need for a positive program to remove the causes of complaints."

Short Cabinet Session

President Truman met with his cabinet for 15 minutes yesterday—one of the briefest sessions on record. Members said no important problems were taken up.

Bullet Hole Patches Betray 2 Who Fled Gas Theft Scene

All that 22-year-old George Lester Gadsby and his juvenile pal had in mind was to swipe some gasoline, Prince Georges County police said yesterday.

But here's what happened when they tried it:

Nimrod Fisher, nightwatchman for the Smith & Smith Supply Co., Beaver Heights, surprised them. Gadsby, 1611 Eastern ave. ne., ducked into the shadows. His buddy, 16 sped away in their car.

Nightwatchman Fisher, 60-odd and a Fairmont Heights resident, drew his gun, pumped two fast shots into the rear of the fleeing car. The lurking Gadsby emerged, grabbed Fisher from behind, threw him to the ground, took the gun and fled on foot.

Gadsby went to his residence, police said, and hid the gun in his basement. In the meantime, his teen-age accomplice stuffed the bullet holes in the car full of chewing gum and dirt, and painted over them.

Police Pvts. James H. Burgess and William F. Little spotted the car from Fisher's description, noted the makeshift bullet hole repairs. They stationedt hemselves there to await Gadsby and his cohort.

The pair arrived, in company with a third youth. Gadsby and the 16-year-old were arrested and taken to Hyattsville police station. Police there reported the youths had confessed to Detective Richard A. Pearson.

Pearson and Gadsby went to the Eastern ave. address to get the gun. It was gone. Pearson picked up the third youth, 17, who admitted hehad taken the gun from Gadsby's house and had thrown it into the anacostia River.

As a result, Gadsby yesterday was charged with grand and petty larceny and held in $1100 bond for hearing Monday in Hyattsville Police Court. His partner was held for juvenile authorities on similar charges. The 17-year-old was detained for the same authorities on a charge of destroying evidence and as an accomplice after the fact.

Constitution Talks Stalled in Germany

In Germany

Russians Massing for War Games

By Walter G. Rundle

Berlin, March 25 (U.P.). — The greatest concentration of Soviet troops in Germany since the war will participate in Russian spring maneuvers in eastern Germany, it was reported today.

The Berlin press said Russian tanks were being concentrated in Saxony and old German airfields were being reopened in preparation for the war games.

The Russians were reported carrying out air-to-air firing practice and bombing practice in the Allied air corridors to Berlin today despite another protest by the Western Allies to the Soviet representative at Berlin's four-power air safety center.

Frankfurt, Germany, March 25 (U.P.). — Allied-German negotiations on the proposed West German constitution broke down tonight.

The seven-man steering committee of the West German constituent assembly at Bonn announced it will write the constitution as it pleases.

"We will present it to the military governors," one delegate said. "If they reject it, then let's see what happens to western Germany. If they accept it, all the better."

Western German political leaders made the decision after the Big Three military governors informed the drafters of the constitution they would not accept German counter-proposals on Allied recommendations for changes in the document.

Centralized Power Issue

The Bonn assembly repected the western military governors' recommendations to revise the draft constitution to meet western objections to centralized powers. Trizonia's 11 minister-presidents, in a nine-hour session at Koenigstein, near Frankfurt, backed the assembly's action.

One Christian Democratic member of a special assembly committee, appointed to study American, British and French objections to the proposed constitution, announced his resignation yesterday.

Dr. Frederick W. Wagner, Socialist head of the assembly's law committee, predicted a hopeless stalemate unless the military governors give in to the assembly.

This threat of stalemate comes as the Soviet zone Communist Party stages a vigorous campaign to lure west German political leaders and their followers to support a Soviet-sponsored plan for a unified Germany.

Red Leader Urges Meeting

Communist Leader Wilhelm Pieck has appealed for a meeting of east and west German delegates at Brunswick, in the British zone, on April 8 to discuss the formation of a unified Germany.

The British-sponsored northwest German radio said Wednesday night that Konrad Adenhauer, president of the Bonn Assembly, had agreed to study the Communist invitation.

Alleged Anti-Allied Talk Shocks British

London, March 25 (U.P.)—British officials were reported "shocked" today by an alleged "ferociously anti-Allied" speech made at Geneva by Konrad Adenauer, president of the west German constitutional assembly.

British press reports said Adenauer told a group of Swiss parliamentary leaders at Geneva yesterday it was the German army, not the German people who capitulated to the Allies, "and this the world had better remember."

Adenauer is western Germany's leading politician by virtue of his chairmanship of the majority Christian Democratic Party which is closely allied with the Catholic Church.

The press reports said Adenauer told the Swiss it was a mistake to have handed over the whole government and civil administration to the "victorious military" and that "it is of paramount importance that a strong central German government be created in Berlin."

Burma Attacks Rebels

Rangoon, Burma, March 25 (AP).—The government announced today that Burmese air and ground forces have struck heavy blows against Karen rebels in the 200-mile area extending northward from Toungoo to Mandalay. Civil war embraces 20 of Burma's 35 districts.

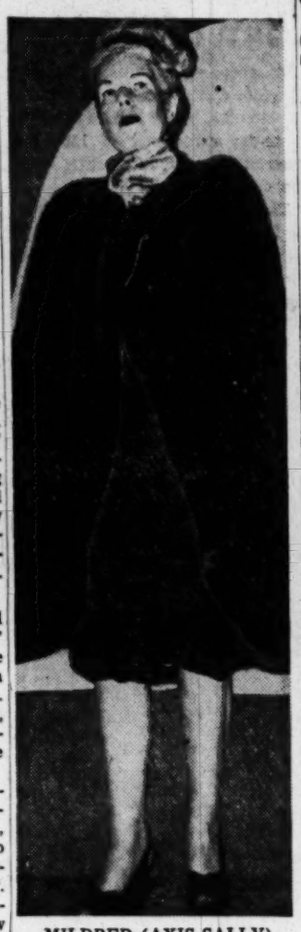
'Sally' Maintains Self-Composure



MILDRED (AXIS SALLY) GILLARS appeared with an "upswept" hair-do at District Court yesterday to hear her sentence of 10 to 30 years

'Sally' Gets 10-30 Years

whose testimony was instrumental in convicting her.

"We were all around the same microphone," she declaimed. "People who testified against me could also have testified against Dr. Koischwitz. Yet he was exonerated—he, the author of 'Vision of Invasion'—he, the coworker exonerated because of lack of evidence."

Curran cut in. "I don't want you to argue the case," he said. "Mr. Laughlin has argued the case to the jury. I asked you if you cared to say anything . . ."

"I don't know what you mean . . ." Miss Gillars began and Laughlin interrupted with, "If this court has been in error . . . the Court of Appeals will take up the matter . . ."

Here Curran indicated he had heard enough. "You remain standing," he instructed Miss Gillars.

"The evidence disclosed you took no part in commentators' conferences" to set policy. "It is also true," the jurist pointed out, "that you were convicted of one act of treason in overt act No. 10. (the invasion drama.)" Then, Curran asked: "You are now going on 49?"

The defendant nodded.

Curran then sentenced her to "pay a fine of $10,000 and serve in an institution of the penetentiary type for a term of years not less than 10 and not more than 30."

Miss Gillars, dressed in black and with her hair in a new upswept coiffure, stood motionless for a moment, then slowly sat down as Laughlin filed notice of appeal.

In similar treason cases since the war, Robert Best and Douglas Chandler, Americans who broadcast for the Nazis received life sentences. A third American, Lieut. Martin Monti, an Army deserter, who also broadcast, was sentenced to 25 years.

Budenz Tells Of Red Party Split in 1945

New York, March 25 (AP).—Gerhardt Eisler as a representative of international communism influenced the swing of United States Communists to a "violent revolution" policy in 1945, a Federal court jury was told today.

Louis F. Budenz, first Government witness at the conspiracy trial of 11 American Communist leaders, identified the German-born Eisler as the agent of the Communist International in this country.

Himself a former high official in the American party, Budenz completed his third day on the stand with a detailed account of a party split in 1945.

This split, he said, eventually resulted in the ouster of Earl Browder as a party leader because he favored a soft policy of peaceful solution of postwar problems instead of the militant program eventually adopted.

Dudenz, who renounced the party in October, 1945, and became an economics teacher at Fordham University, said Eisler was known as Hans Burger in his role as the Comintern representative in the United States.

Eugene Dennis, a defendant, told him of Burger's position, the witness said.

He added that Jacob Stachel, another defendant, told him (Dudenz) that he (Satchel) had to get the word from Burger before he could switch his ideological position to oppose "Browderism," the policy of cooperation, in 1945.

Stachel, party educational director, said that "Hans Burger had given permission for his change of position," the witness testified.

Eisler is not a defendant but has attended many trial sessions as a spectator. He has been identified before a congressional committee as America's No. 1 Communist, but he denies it.

In 1947, he was convicted twice in District of Columbia courts, first on a contempt of Congress and then on a passport fraud charge. Both cases are being appealed.

The Government also has a deportation case pending against him but has delayed pushing it. Eisler is free on bail in this case, too.

Budenz told of a meeting of the Communist Political Association in June, 1945, which he said was attended by seven of the defendants. The main topic, he said, was "the disposition of Earl Brower and his policies."

William Z. Foster, national chairman of the party and Browder's main foe, urged at the meeting that action be taken to intensify strikes in progress at various places throughout the Nation, Budenz testified.

Foster wanted telegrams sent to Communist labor unionists directing them to "politicalize" the walkouts, he said.

But the proposal was withdrawn, the witness added, after two officials of the CIO United Electrical Workers Union, whom he did not identify, opposed such action because "the time was not ripe."

Trial Put Off

Foster was one of the party leaders indicted but his trial was put off because he has a heart ailment.

The party chairman was highly critical of Browder's action in dissolving the Communist Party and forming the Political Association in its stead in 1944, Budenz said.

He testified the Political Association Committee voted, 53 to 1, to revert to the Maxist-Leninist revolutionary philosophy and to reconstitute the American Communist Party at a July convention.

In discussing the committee's functioning, the witness asserted "there is no parliamentary discussion permitted."

"It is more like a teacher discussing a subject with a class," he added. "After the dealer of the party, as the chief reporter, has his say, then everyone gets up and agrees with the report. Unanimity prevails."

The defendants are charged with conspiring to advocate the forcible overthrow of the United States Government. The trial resumes next Tuesday.

Marzani Jailed For 1-3 Years, Retrial Denied

Carl A. Marzani, 37, former State Department employe, was denied a new trial in District Court yesterday and was sentenced to serve from one to three years in jail.

He was convicted in May, 1947, of perjury for giving false information about his Communist Party affiliations in a Federal loyalty test.

Judge Richmond B. Keech imposed sentence on the Italian-born Marzani. Judge Keech denied a defense plea for a new trial on the basis of new evidence and also refused to allow the defendant to remain at liberty under bail pending an appeal.

Russian Shifts Clear Decks For Politburo

Moscow, March 25 (NYHT.).—The replacement of Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin with Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky as Minister of the armed forces means that virtually all the members of the Politburo of the Communist Party are now free of administrative duties and in a position to concentrate on more important matters.

It will be recalled that Viacheslav M. Molotov, previously Foreign Minister, and Anastas I. Mikoyan, previously Foreign Trade Minister, turned over their portfolios to their chief assistants early this month.

As members of the Politburo, Molotov, Mikoyan and Bulganin hold positions superior to the cabinet ministers of which they held the portfolios. They remain not only Politburo members but also deputy Prime Ministers.

A. N. Kosygin, Minister of Light Industry, is the only Politburo member who continues to hold a cabinet post.

'Peace' Rally Given Criticism by Editor

New York, March 25 (AP). — A magazine editor went before a "world peace" conference tonight to tell the group that Americans "do not want peace at any price."

He was Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature.

Cousins' sharp criticism of the conference was leveled only a short time after it was opened by William O. Stapledon, an English philosopher.

Stapledon warned America not to count on the all-out support of the British people in any war against Russia.

About 2000 persons were on hand for the conference opening at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Almost as many more picketed outside on Park Avenue in the rain to protest the confeernce.

Cousins charged that the group supporting the conference "owes its primary allegiance and duty not to America but to an outside government."

Stapledon told the conference that "the true socialist" in Britain "suspects America of embarking on a new imperialism."

"And we are not anxious to sell our souls to America," he said.

At a news conference earlier in the day Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer and conference chairman, emphasized that the parley's only purpose was to bring peace and understanding to the United States and Russia.

"This has been falsely labeled a pro-Communist meeting," he said. "It's not. Its organizers are American citizens and seek to contribute to the establishment of the spirit of peace at a time when there is the heavy noise of the great armaments of war."

Shapley was quickly taken up on his assertion there were Democrats and Republicans among the conference sponsors. He was asked to name a single Republican sponsor.

"Marshall Dimock, Republican State Senator for Vermont, is leading one of our panels," he said.

"Didn't he campaign for Henry Wallace?" asked a reporter.

"Let's leave politics out of this," replied Shapley.

Then he introduced the leaders of the delegations. A. A. Fadeyev, writer and head of the Soviet delegation, said great scientific discoveries were being used for the "annihilation of civilization." He told one questioner that the Russian army is demobilized.

A White Russian newspaperman demanded: "What has happened to so many famous Russian writers who have disappeared?"

Fadeyev said he would answer later. He also said limitations of time would prevent the Russian delegation from accepting an invitation of the National Association of Manufacturers to tour American factories.

Shapley intervened to cut off the flood of questions. He said the artists, scientists and intellectuals would discuss the field they knew best at the panel discussions which start Saturday at Carnegie Hall and the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and end with a rally Sunday night at Madison Square Garden.

'Peace Partisans' Set Paris Rally April 20

Paris, March 25 (UP).—Intellectual, religious and labor leaders from more than 20 countries were expected here on April 20 for the "World Congress of the Partisans of Peace."

Hook Demands That Shapley Give Apology

New York, March 25 (NYHT).—Dr. Sidney Hook, who had been denied permission to speak at the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, burst into the hotel room of Dr. Harlow Shapley, conference chairman, tonight and demanded a "public apology."

Confronting Dr. Shapley, Dr. Hook firmly denied he had misstated facts in seeking a speaking assignment.

Dr. Shapley denied he had seen letters from his program committeemen that recommended that Dr. Hook be given a place on the program. However, he said he knew such letters existed.

Dr. Shapley, in a letter to Dr. Hook dated March 18, said the latter was guilty of "plain misstatements of fact" in saying that President Herbert John Davis of Smith College and Guy Emery Shipler, editor of The Churchman, members of the program committee, had written him asking that Dr. Hook be given a place on the program.

After Dr. Shapley refused to listen, Dr. Hook walked over to a coffee table and threw down carbon copies of letters from Dr. Davis and Shipler as proof that Dr. Shapley had received their supporting requests that Dr. Hook be permitted to give his views.

Saying that "we can't talk about this in front of the ladies," Dr. Shapley and his male companion, who was not identified, walked from the room into the hall and Dr. Hook followed. Then instead of going to the elevators, Shapley and his companion, ducked back into the room and closed the door, the automatic lock clicking into place, barring Dr. Hook.

That ended the scene, but Dr. Hook declared: "Well, I gave him the evidence that his own program committee made the request that I should speak."

Asked if he considered the conference was Communist-dominated at the time he sought a place on the speakers' platform, Dr. Hook said: "I had my suspicions. If they had let me speak, then they would have demonstrated that they wanted a fair and free exchange of information on the way to secure world peace. When they ignored my letters and kept me off the program, I knew my suspicions were correct."

In a letter to Dr. Shapley on February 25, Dr. Hook declared that he wanted to defend three theses, "which seem to be of the greatest importance today."

These were:

1. There are no "national truths" in science, and that it is only by its deficiencies that a science can ever become the science of one nation or another.
2. There are no "class truths" or "party truths" in science.
3. The cause of international scientific cooperation and peace has been very seriously undermined by the influence of doctrines that uphold the notion that there are "national" or "class" or "party" truths in science.

The letters that Dr. Hook left with Dr. Shapley contained one that said the possibility of letters being lost in the mail were remote but ". . . I am loath to conclude that you are deliberately telling an untruth although you have not scrupled to slander my integrity in charging me with plain and persistent misstatement of fact.

"There is only one alternative explanation which plausibly accounts for your conduct, unexampled in scientific and academic circles. It is that you do not know what is going on within your own organization, that the inner Communist group are deceiving you to the point of suppressing letters sent to you which they do not wish to come to your attention, and that you have become the willing dupe of enemies of your own country as well as (enemies) of the ideals of moral decency and scientific truth you profess."

Reds Protest

London, March 25 (U.P.).—Soviet Ambassador George Zarubin protested today that the British press had implied Russia supported forcible repatriation of displaced persons in Austria.

Zarubin, one of the Big Four deputy foreign ministers trying to write an Austrian treaty, implied that the reports on Russia's stand came from the British Foreign Office.

British Delegate James Majoribanks said the United States, Britain and France favored "voluntary" repatriation while Russia wanted the word "voluntary" left out of the treaty.

Future Role of Yugoslavia Seen in Speech Slated by Tito

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 25 (AP).—Pemier Marshal Tito will make a major speech next month which may chart Yugoslavia's future role in world affairs. It may mark a shift toward improved economic relations with the West.

The speech is expected to be uttered about April 10 before the Congress of the Peoples Front of Yugoslavia. It is likely to cover this country's increasing difficulties with its Communist neighbors since the regime was blacklisted by the Communist Information Bureau (Cominform) eight months ago.

Tito's speech will be made amid obvious signs of newly sharpened interest by American and British businessmen in arranging major deals with Yugoslavia.

Danes Accept Pact Invitation

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 25 (AP).—Denmark formally accepted today an invitation to join the North Atlantic treaty. Parliament gave final authorization for the step.

A note announcing Denmark's decision was handed Edward J. Sparks, United States charge d'affaires in Copenhagen, by Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen.

The upper house of parliament approved by a vote of 64 to 8, with four members absent. The lower house voted yesterday, 119 to 23.

Now Premier Hans Hedtoft's government has permission from both houses to ratify the treaty, after signature, without further reference to Parliament.

Rasmussen will go to the United States March 30 for the signing ceremonies in Washington next month, the foreign ministry announced.

Leahy Quits as Truman's Aide

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, who rounded the Horn in 1898 to fight in the Battle of Santiago, retired yesterday as Chief of Staff to the President. He will be 74 on May 6.

His departure from the White House was marked by the fortuitous tolling of a ship's clock in President Truman's office.

Mr. Truman had just awarded Admiral Leahy a gold star in lieu of a third Distinguished Service Medal. Secretary of Defense James Forrestal and others gathered for the ceremony had applauded and the old seadog was murmuring his thanks when the clock on the mantle gave out with seven bells—3:30 p. m.

One of Joint Chiefs

Admiral Leahy, who took over the unique role of Chief of Staff to the Commander in Chief under President Roosevelt in 1942, was the last active member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that directed America's great war machine in World War II. He was the senior member of that group, which also included Gen. George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, and Gen. H. H. Arnold.

Remains on Active List

Although he has been "piped over the side" at the White House, Admiral Leaby will remain on the Navy's active list and will be entitled to a lifetime income of $15,312 a year.

Congress specifically provided for this in 1946 when it gave him permanent five-star rank. Others of five-star rank who were similarly honored at the time are Fleet Admirals King, Chester W. Nimitz and William F. (Bull) Halsey, and Generals Marshall, Arnold, Douglas MacArthur and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Admirals Nimitz and Halsey were at the White House ceremony yesterday. Admiral King was absent because of illness and so was General Eisenhower. General Marshall, it was said, had returned to his home in Pinehurst, N. C. General MacArthur is, of course, in Japan.

It had been taken for granted that President Truman would not appoint a successor to Admiral Leahy as his chief of staff. However, when asked whether there would be a successor yesterday he raised some doubt about this by replying:

"Not for the preesnt."

Born in Iowa

Admiral Leahy, who was to serve the country as a diplomat as well as sailor, was born in Hampton, Iowa, and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1897. He joined the famous old battleship Oregon on the West Coast and was aboard her when the war with Spain began.

The Oregon sailed down the Pacific, rounded Cape Horn, and joined the North Atlantic Squadron to the Cuban coast, and on June 1, 1898, began the battle that resulted in the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet in Santiago Harbor.

Admiral Leahy is now working on his memoirs. These will start with his service as Ambassador to Vichy, France, and will cover his years as chief of staff to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman, a period in which he attended all the historic conferences at Casablanca, Quebec, Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam. The book, which is being edited by Charter Heslep, is scheduled for publication in the autumn.

Juvenile Court

The report that Judge Fay L. Bentley is too ill to permit her return to the bench is a blow to the District Juvenile Court. Judge Bentley has served with distinction in the difficult task of dealing with child-law offenders. The loss of her services will be deeply felt by the community.

Obviously Judge Bentley's incapacity presents a special problem for the local courts. Her present term, which is her second, runs until 1952, and there is no provision in the law for retirement of judges who have served less than three full six-year terms. The current arrangement under which Judge Nadine Gallagher of the Municipal Court is substituting for Judge Bentley is unsatisfactory, for it deprives the already overburdened Municipal Court of one of its members.

We doubt, however, whether the District Bar Association's proposal for the appointment of a second Juvenile Court judge is the answer, at least in the form in which it has been presented. For this bill has the earmarks of subterfuge to take care of a particular situation. It calls for the selection of a new Juvenile Court judge for a 10-year term and permits the discretionary addition of a second judge after Judge Bentley's term expires in 1952.

The immediate problem is how to provide Juvenile Court services and end the drain on the Municipal Court. This could be accomplished more honestly, we believe, by pressing for a law to make retirement mandatory on all judges when they are incapacitated for more than a reasonable period. Such a law might well be accompanied by a more liberal disability retirement system that would permit Judge Bentley to withdraw without hardship. Certainly the Bar Association is correct in its efforts to standardize Juvenile Court terms and salaries with those of the Municipal Court. But if the Juvenile Court case load is sufficient to warrant a second full-time judge, the issue ought to be met squarely on its own merits.

Insurance Stamps

When the Federal old-age insurance system was inaugurated, millions of workers were excluded from coverage because of the administrative difficulties involved in the collection of the tax. Consequently, many wage earners most in need of the protection afforded, notably farm laborers and domestic servants, are still outside the system. Arthur J. Altmeyer, Social Security Administrator, assures the Ways and Means Committee that the practical objections to extension of coverage can be met by introduction of a stamp-book system especially designed for workers on farms where pay records are not kept and for domestic servants. The same system could also be used by small establishments, relieving them of a good deal of book work.

This method has been successfully employed in other countries, and there is no reason for supposing that it would not work here. The employe would be supplied with a book in which his employer each payday would place insurance stamps equal to the amount of the required contribution, half the cost of the stamps being borne by the employe. These books would provide a record of earnings and contributions for the Social Security Administration and no special reports would be required of the employer.

The unjust discrimination practiced against the uninsured would be magnified if Congress were to increase the present inadequate old-age benefits without the recommended extension of coverage. The purpose of the insurance system is to provide wage earners with a form of protection in old age that is theirs by right and to prevent them from becoming public charges. So long as millions of industrious Americans are deprived of an opportunity to earn this protection by their own contributions the old-age insurance system will only partially fulfill its purpose.

Cheaper Milk

The one-cent-per-quart reduction in Washington milk prices is especially welcome because milk is a dietary staple and an important item in the cost of living. Milk producers and dairies were strident in their efforts to raise prices when costs were going up back in 1947. The current move means that these suppliers have kept faith with their customers; the cut reflects the general trend of food prices and no doubt takes into account the lower cost of such ingredients as cattle feed.

Of further significance is the fact that the local reduction represents a break away from the price structure set by the Virginia Milk Commission. The commission's past action in raising prices in Virginia has served as a peg for like increases in the District and Maryland. It is hard to see how the commission can avoid extending to nearby Virginia consumers the benefits of the price reduction in the District and Maryland. The question that logically follows is what about the price of other essential food items such as bread, which is still commanding a premium even though the cost of its major ingredient, wheat, is down approximately one third from the peak?

Two Germanys

The partition of Germany has become an accomplished fact with the Soviet setting up of an east German administration. Meantime the wrangling goes on about the future of western Germany. The French want decentralization, the British centralization, the Americans something between the two extremes. Secretary Acheson says he does not favor a meeting of the three foreign ministers on German issues, presumably because he is not yet ready for it. But there will have to be a meeting of Allied minds as soon as the United States Government has made up its own.

At least three specific errors of approach can be charged to the United States. First, American policy has put more stress on making western Germany self-supporting than on preventing it from becoming a menace to its neighbors. Second, American authorities in Germany have paid too much attention to the former owners and managers of German business, and too little to the non-Communist labor movement as the most cooperative, dependable and peaceable segment of the German people. Finally, in spite of the Marshall Plan, our authorities on the spot have dragged their feet in integrating western Germany with the rest of western Europe.

Primarily, however, there has been no consistent philosophy toward the problem of Germany. Our own view has always been that of Jacques Bainville who in his Political Consequences of the Peace—which was every whit as important as Keynes' Economic Consequences of the Peace—argued that after the World War I the Allies broke up the wrong empire: Austro-Hungary instead of Germany. The danger from German militarism could be removed, he insisted, only by a break-up of central administration in Germany. The burden of Bainville's case has been justified by succeeding events. Yet, seemingly, the lesson has not been learned, and the setting up of a west German government, instead of separate states loosely bound together in a confederation, is now Allied policy.

Only the French are holding out for something approximating the Bainville thesis—a loose federal system in western Germany. And even the French haven't displayed the courage of their convictions; they have objected to formal German participation in the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. It is time for them to drop their fear-struck opposition to letting Germans take part in OEEC. Only in that event would their position on Germany acquire logic. Nothing would show so dramatically that western Germany is a part of the Western world as a welcome to German laender as coequal members of OEEC. That is the only way that the new nationalism that is rising almost visibly in Germany can be metamorphosed.

Mr. Bevin says he is "not going to despair yet of a united Germany." There is no reason—granted the wisdom of striving for a united, or centralized, Germany—why he should. Certainly, with two functioning halves, there will always be present a gravitational pull, fomented by a rising nationalism. But is this the kind of Germany we want? The nationalistic pull, we submit, would operate with a diminishing force if confederation took the place of bifurcation. It is harder for half a dozen units to come together than for two, and there is more opportunity of particularism taking the place of nationalism if the laender are given the maximum autonomy.

Germany came out of this war potentially more powerful vis-a-vis any other European nation than it did after the World War I. It is, moreover, almost in a position now of balancing East and West. Indeed, it looks as if the choice in the distant future is between a German Europe and a European Europe. This latter goal should animate our policy on Germany, and it is not yet too late to make the reorientation.

Swedish Policy

Ambassador Matthews, just back from his post at Stockholm, told the reporters that he is convinced that Sweden definitely does not plan to join the Atlantic Pact but will stick to a traditional policy of neutrality. We wonder. It looks as if Swedish policy will be dictated by what happens in Finland. If the Russians intensify their pressure on Finland and insist on the building of communications spurs up to the Swedish frontier similar to those that Soviet Russia has built on its Finnish frontier, then it is quite conceivable that Sweden would apply for membership in the North Atlantic Pact. However, this possibility might persuade the Soviet not to mount the kind of pressure on the Finns that would alarm the Swedes.

In any event the use of the word neutrality as applied to Swedish policy is a misnomer, though Foreign Minister Unden is to blame for the constant use of it. Sweden remains a member of the United Nations, and in the Charter neutrality was abolished. What Sweden wanted by way of action to offset Soviet nullification of the peace-enforcement provision of the U. N. was a regional defense system for Scandinavia. This aim has been frustrated by the decision of Norway and the prospective decision of Denmark to enter the North Atlantic arrangement. But this doesn't let Sweden out of its United Nations obligations, and there is no such attempt on the part of the Swedish government.

Legislative Farce

Hope for the enactment of a well-reasoned labor-management relations bill at the present session of Congress has suffered another setback in the rubber-stamp performance of the House Labor Committee. The committee went through the motions of hearings for 10 days, but refused to consider any of the amendments subsequently offered by its own members. By a tie vote it declined even to analyze the bill section by section. Chairman Lesinski then forced a favorable report on the bill sent down from the White House with the explanation, "I am taking my orders from the Administration."

The committee has made a farce of the legislative process. It has dismissed the great problems of industrial relations as if nothing were involved but the payment of a political debt. Following a similar performance on the part of the Senate Labor Committee, this abandonment of legislative responsibility not only prejudices the enactment of a reasonable substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act. It also raises a question as to whether any labor legislation can be enacted at the present session. For bills dealing with such complicated problems as management-labor relations cannot be satisfactorily written on the floor, and we suspect that a majority of both houses will agree with us that enactment of the Administration's bill would be worse than no legislation at all.

A recent article in the Quarterly Journal of Economics by Sumner H. Slichter offers an impressive bill of particulars against some provisions of the Tart-Hartley Act. The provisions designed to protect the right to join and to remain a member of a union are defective. Professor Slichter also finds weaknesses in the provision requiring non-Communist oaths from union leaders, in the attempted regulation of campaign expenditures by unions, and especially in the machinery created for dealing with national emergencies resulting from strikes. Each one of these problems demands thoughtful attention by any government which is undertaking to regulate labor-management relations. But Mr. Lesinski and his fellow steamrollers would simply push these problems aside as if they did not exist.

Professor Slichter also finds that many sections of the Taft-Hartley Act are working well. It protects employes from coercion from any source in the exercise of their rights to organize or not to organize. It protects their right to choose bargaining agents without interference. It requires unions as well as employers to bargain in good faith. It provides for regulation of health and welfare funds to prevent resources accumulated for the benefit of workers in time of need from being frittered away for other purposes. And aside from its specific provisions, the act appears to have given union leaders a new awareness of the dangers of relying too heavily upon the Government. Professor Slichter concludes with good reason that "the act has greatly invigorated the trade union movement."

What was obviously needed was an unbiased study of the act and its results, with elimination of those sections that have proved to be bad, such as the requirement for union-shop elections, and improvement of those sections that are either too harsh or poorly worked out. Such a task cannot possibly be done by either the House or the Senate on the floor. Both bodies would be fully justified, in our opinion, in returning the politically dictated bill to their Labor Committees with instructions to do their duty.

A Sorry Setting

The poverty of our Capital City has been advertised to all the world by the choice of the Departmental Auditorium as the place where the North Atlantic Pact will be formally signed. Washington has a higher per capita income than all but two States of the Union; it has more marble inside its public buildings than most American cities, and more pretentious columns outside them; it is not poor by these and other accepted standards. Yet this capital has no theater, no opera house, no stadium better than a ball park, and no conference hall worthy of a country that stands at the pinnacle of world leadership. If international conferences meet in Washington they must find quarters in hotel ballrooms or in the reconditioned attic of an office building which the State Department now uses for the purpose. Our facilities for great occasions are those of an overgrown village.

Take any high school assembly hall, add a couple of Doric colonnades, hang a shiny metal chandelier from the ceiling, put a pretentious portico outside it, and you have the Departmental Auditorium on Constitution ave. It has neither historical associations nor architectural distinction. The fitness of things would have been better observed, we think, if the Organization of American States had offered its headquarters in the Pan American Union Building, with its fine ceremonial chamber on the second floor, for the signing of a treaty that will bring a sister organization of peace-loving states into being. In this setting there would at least have been some connection between the backdrop and the ceremony on the stage, but there would have been no room for the thousand members of Congress and their wives whom the State Department, with a good sense of public relations, is inviting to see the signing. Probably the sorry setting on Constitution ave. was the best that could be found. We can only hope that the ceremony on April 4 will be managed with a dignity worthy of the treaty and of the birth of a great new partnership in world affairs.

Steel Capacity

I have read H. G. Moulton's interesting article on the steel situation, published in your March 20 issue. This is an exceptionally sound and practical statement of the facts, and it is refreshing after the great volume of misrepresentation that has been put out over the country during the past several years.

Steel production is now running at the rate of about 96 million tons for this year, and with the increase in capacity still being installed, we should be able to produce by January 1, 1950, a total of 100 million tons of steel ingots annually. There is a full supply of steel today, and with the decreases in demand that are developing, I can say without hesitation that we will have a surplus of steel over the last half of the year and that again the steel industry will be in its normal position of being overbuilt in the way of producing capacity.

During 1948 the users of steel generally were increasing their inventories, not as a matter of improving their operations but being, in their opinion, a matter of safety against further possible shortages. If this had not been done, I am quite sure there would have been no shortages and no gray markets in steel during 1948—in fact, the great production in all lines of activity during that year could not have been accomplished without an ample supply of steel. Farmers harvested the greatest crops in history, the railroads and other methods of transportation handled their largest tonnages, building was at a maximum, and the production of the great variety of miscellaneous articles made from steel was so large as to bring about a congestion in their markets by the end of the year.

The practical facts are that the steel industry has done a wonderful job in taking care of the enormous built-up demand for steel that existed when the war ended in 1945.

Dangers In The Pact

The North Atlantic Pact brings to a dangerous climax, unnecessarily, the clash between two great segments of the world's peoples.

Indecisive and dilatory as has been the U. N.'s general policy, no war was threatened by its methods. The U. N. possesses ample authority to handle the issue of Russian aggression. The U. N. has the authority to set up a police force to carry out its decisions. There is no need for the provocative pact.

ALBERT A. VOLK.
New York.

Russia has a very simple defense against the atom bomb; she can build up vast stores of ammunition and all supplies at a hundred points in eastern Germany. Then, if she chooses to treat an "incident" in Norway, Belgium or any part of the extended line covered by the North Atlantic Pact as an excuse for war, she can suddenly advance through Germany, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France toward the North Sea.

Russia is safe in all this territory from the atom bomb; America will not bomb Brussels, Copenhagen or Berlin, the innocent inhabitants will be a sufficient protection.

The only possible protection against this advance is a western Germany strong enough to offer effective resistance. Either the Germans must be organized to have a mighty army of their own, under American supreme command, or American forces of occupation must be greatly increased and air bases established.

We are only kidding ourselves if we imagine that Russia will really be frightened by a pact which just creates an extended front exposed to concentrated attack at any point she may select. How can reinforcements be rushed to Belgium if Russia can cross from eastern to western Germany at a dozen different points without the semblance of serious resistance?

"Congressional Privilege"

Permit me to commend your March 21 editorial, "Congressional Privilege."

Men who are honored by their constituents with a seat in the Congress, in the main, are big of spirit, but occasionally one gets to that high office who is a reflection unfavorable to his district.

Your editorial (on Congressman McGuire's brush with District police) should help in deflating some exaggerated egos in both our houses of Congress.

A. S. PINKETT.

The congressional shades of men like N. D. Sperry, John L. Tilson et al. must feel rather apologetic for their freshman successor from the Nutmeg State. Most Connecticut Yankees in King Arthur's Court have enough native wisdom and fairness to realize the social values of noblesse oblige and to live up to it without bellyaching or attempting to pull rank.

"Overpopulation" Bogey

People argue for and against birth control mainly on two grounds, the moral and the economic. As for the first, it is difficult for me to see how Christians can condone a practice which has as its end th frustration of a natural, God-given power. Reasoning for birth control on economic grounds is as fallacious today as it was in 1798, when Malthus wrote his "Essay on Population," though today this is less excusable. In the Western world, at least, there can be no doubt that, despite the tremendous increase in population during the last 150 years, living standards have constantly risen. Today fewer people are on the brink of starvation than in the day of Malthus and the gloomy economic prophets.

The best of current economic thinking is concerned more with the difficulties of keeping the economy moving at a high level in the face of a decline in population growth than with the bogey of "overpopulation." An expanding population furnishes us with expanding markets and the demand necessary to keep the economic machine rolling.

What about the Orient: India, China, Japan? The burden of the proof lies with those who claim the solution lies in birth prevention rather than industrial stimulation. Are the masses of the Orient worse off today than they were a century ago, even though their population has increased tremendously? Has scientific agriculture and industrialization been sufficiently tried in those countries? As long as the United States, Russia, the Ukraine, Argentina and Australia compete for larger parts of a limited export market on which to push their surplus crops, does it not seem vain to talk of the necessary scarcity of food? FBI Methods In The Loyalty Probe

A question has been raised concerning the efficacy of the methods of the FBI. For the last year, I have been in the position of informally checking upon the reliability of FBI reports regarding loyalty and security clearance of scientists.

First, it may be mentioned that more injustices to individuals may be traced to the boards conducting hearings than to the reports themselves. Many officials in a position of responsibility are incapable of interpreting sensibly the distinctions between rumor, hearsay and verified fact, even though clearly set forth as such by the FBI reports. This lack of understanding has been found to be scattered all through the Government, but it has been more frequent and more flagrant in the military services and in the Department of Commerce than anywhere else.

The investigational methods of the FBI may be compared to a coarse screen designed to filter out those who are infected with the Stalinist religion or with some extreme forms of fascism. The number of such persons, however, is very small, so it is inevitable that many more innocent persons are listed among the suspects than the types actually sought after. As everyone knows, far more "good liberals" and free-thinkers got through than were caught. The risks among the politically inert were not totally absent; indeed, they made up a fair fraction of the total.

In this residue it is necessary to separate the sheep from the goats. It is at this stage that flaws in the FBI reports began to show up. The greatest defect has been incomplete coverage, as might be expected from the speed which is expected of the investigators, but serious errors are also encountered. Ordinarily this would not be too worrisome because in regular judicial procedures several independent methods of verification are used, but for loyalty and security clearance hearings, few, if any, are available.

One famous "air tight" c completely evaporated when the accusers themselves (obviously none were paid informers) were consulted. After coming upon scores of such cases (from among tens of thousands of investigations) scientists have passed along the recommendation to fellow scientists that all statements to FBI investigators ought to be written and signed in order to avoid mistakes. They should also give indication that they are willing to support their evaluations at a hearing, if desirable. This is the best that can be done short of granting of judicial type hearings or a repeal of the loyalty order.

We are living through a nasty period when irresponsible Congressmen could shout with telling effect that the Government is shot full of "Reds" were it not for the Administration rejoinder that its personnel is statistically purer than a well known soap. But even the tiny "impurity," it seems, includes more victims of the analytical procedure than of Marxist illusions.

Professor Emerson draws his conclusions from mistakes which were made, while J. Edgar Hoover thinks mainly in terms of the convenience with which he can carry out an assigned task of huge dimensions. The problem of what should be done to clear the names of those who are libeled in the secret files that affect present and future livelihood remains to be solved.

Nation's Test—Women's Place

By Malvina Lindsay

Soviet "Equality"

FORTUNATELY for women everywhere the conflict between East and West has brought their status into the limelight. Recently the Soviet Union has been protesting—almost too loudly—its concern for women. Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, school teacher, who plunged out of a window rather than return to Russia, told a different story in her address Wednesday night in Philadelphia.

The Soviet's recent cold war offensive on the feminine front began when Alexei Pavlov told the United Nations that Soviet women were not used to the rigors of housework (including "dishpan hands") demanded of women in capitalist countries, therefore would not be permitted to join their foreign husbands. Next Soviet newspapers reported that American women were cowed and deprived of elementary rights.

Then the Central Committee of the Communist Party issued a well publicized decree ordering all party, government, trade union and youth organizations to advance women to leading posts in "more daring" fashion. (This timing found American women voicing much discontent over failure to crack policy-making posts in Government.)

THE IRON curtain and a haze of propaganda obscure any comprehensive picture of the Soviet woman today. Her position differs in localities and among classes, as peasant, industrial, professional, party elite. Yet from the most recent authoritative information on the subject this may be said:

Virtually all types of jobs are open to Soviet women on equal terms with men, and no discrimination exists in many of the professions.

Attempts are made to provide for the children of working mothers, and maternity leaves and benefits are granted.

Women are still absent from positions of real power in the party, government and the economy. As in this country, there is a tendency to include them in the ceremonial organs of government but keep them out of places of real power.

Despite an occasional feminine Ambassador, women are restricted in the diplomatic service. It is reported medical and law schools now limit the number of women students. Women still form a majority in the medical profession.

Soviet equality has created better opportunities for some women, notably farm women and women in the Asiatic republics. But general low living standards work special hardships on women.

In manual labor Soviet women are the victims of a technique similar to that of Tom Sawyer in getting his fence painted. The "privilege" of working on equal terms with men has been forced on them since the Five-Year Plans required the mobilization of every possible worker. Thus women work as blacksmiths, coal miners, stevedores, lumberjacks, railroad track tenders, street cleaners, farm laborers—usually with men supervisors.

MEANWHILE the new Soviet emphasis on motherhood, childbearing and home life makes women's double job a gruelling one. A high percentage of miscarriages and abortions among married women workers are reported in the larger cities.

The Soviet woman laborer, on a six-day week, must do her housework and her standing in a market queue after she gets home. Her husband rarely helps.

The typical city woman worker comes home to a one-room existence with her family. A three or four room apartment is usually shared by three or four families. Women on collective farms have separate dwellings with primitive accommodations. Women make up 60 per cent of agricultural workers and have full "equality" in the heavy field tasks.

Soviet women are constantly reminded of their "privilege of sharing in the great work of socialist reconstruction." Whether their equality will extend to more power and honors now seems doubtful despite the Central Committee's recent statement. The present trend is believed to be away from, rather than toward, more equality, especially for city women whose choice in careers is becoming more circumscribed.

Chief criterions of equality for women are the right to decide freely on the work they will do, and the right to a voice in government policy. Any nation boasting of its gallantry or justice to them should test itself on these.

Tax-Exempt

As I was filling out my tax return, I remembered the amusing story about the early years of Conan Doyle, before he had taken up writing "Sherlock Holmes," and when he was a very poor young doctor with almost no practice at all. One year he made so little money that he filled out a return to the British treasury effectively proving that he was not liable to any income tax at all. The officials at the British treasury thought he was trying to put something over on them and so they returned the tax form to Conan Doyle, scrawling all over it: "Very unsatisfactory."

Conan Doyle returned the form right back again to the British treasury with the postscript, "I entirely agree."

Hopeless Decay In Nationalist China

THE SENATE Foreign Relations Committee in a closed session the other day heard some hard facts about China. The witness, Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, was just back from stricken China where for a year he had tried to advise Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalist generals on the conduct of the war.

Childs

Through the early months of 1948 his confidential intelligence reports to Washington had foretold the impending disaster. The advice he gave as head of the Joint United State Military Advisory Group was consistently and repeatedly ignored.

The incompetence of the Nationalist generals went at times to fantastic lengths. Thus in the defense of Tientsin Chinese armies were hopelessly divided and the Communist forces took the city with comparatively little effort.

Most startling was General Barr's statement that an estimated 90 per cent of all American military aid to Nationalist China was taken by the Communist armies. At an earlier press conference he had said publicly that the Communists had got the "major proportion." But in the closed session he spelled it out more specifically.

A great part of this military material the Communists got without firing a shot. General Barr told the committee, in effect, that no amount of arms from this country could have saved the Nationalist regime from disaster. He painted a picture of sprawling chaos and disorder in vast armies from which the will to fight had entirely gone.

"The troops had lost confidence in themselves," General Barr said, "and there was a defeatist attitude throughout the army. That was the reason for the final collapse."

THIS testimony from a soldier who struggled at first-hand with the China dragon goes against the gospel of those Americans who blame the Roosevelt-Truman Administrations for the disaster. Their number, however, is dwindling in the face of indisputable facts that cannot be ignored even by those who want to make political capital out of the tragedy.

Confronted with General Barr's realistic analysis, the old China hand reacts immediately by suggesting that he was put up to his testimony by Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Those who know General Barr well resent this as a slur on his conspicuous integrity and independence.

It happens that Mr. Acheson did suggest to the committee that General Barr be called to testify. But that was because he had seen the general's intelligence reports detailing his futile struggle as head of a futile mission. Mr. Acheson did not seek in any way to influence what General Barr might tell the Senators.

One reason for the controversy over China has been the reluctance of officials to make the facts public. A letter is in preparation in the State Department to be signed by Mr. Acheson which will tell more about the disaster than has yet been disclosed. As now planned, this will be sent to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and released at the Capitol.

WHEN THE figures are all put together, it is believed they will show the Chinese Nationalist government received more than 2 billion dollars in military and economic aid since VJ-Day. In addition, the Chinese were allowed to buy at very low prices another billion dollars in supplies.

This, to be sure, is history. Whatever the reasons for the catastrophe, its appalling consequences are all too apparent and no one in the State Department, from Mr. Acheson on down, has any inclination to minimize them.

Some tough decisions must be made and almost any answer is sure to be wrong. What to do, for example, about the great port cities, such as Shanghai, which the Communists apparently intend to leave alone at least until after the next harvest.

The hungry masses in those cities now exist largely on American aid. If the aid is cut off, the United States will be accused of opening the way for chaos and communism. If it is continued, the charge will be that this country played the sucker and kept the bird alive until the Red armies were ready to capture it.

Undoubtedly the China failure, and America's share of responsibility for it, will come into the debate on ECA and the proposal to lend-lease arms to the nations of the Atlantic Pact. Quite apart from partisan politics, there are important lessons to be learned from the calamity.

Capehart Asks 3-Billion Top On ECA Funds

By The Associated Press

A contention by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) that Marshall Plan funds can be slashed deeply because Europe already has made a big economic comeback was quickly challenged yesterday by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.).

Capehart told the Senate that Europe has achieved prewar production levels even though less than 50 per cent of the United States aid already authorized has actually been sent.

Vandenberg said that production, or industrial levels, should not be used as the only yardstick for measuring Europe's postwar recovery.

Other Factors Before War

Before the war, he said, there were many factors besides industrial production and exports that figured in Europe's over-all economy.

Among these factors, Vandenberg said, were earnings from foreign investments "which no longer exit," shipping and insurance fees, and income from tourists.

The disappearance of these things, he said, combined with the destruction caused by the war, means that "you cannot apply solely the yardstick of industrial recovery" to the entire European economy.

Vandenberg argued it is now necessary to help Europe build up her industries and export trade to compensate for the loss of other prewar factors.

But he also told Capehart:

"We should not undertake even in our wildest dreams to bring European countries back to a total economy in excess of prewar."

Capehart said he couldn't agree with Vandenberg.

The Indiana legislator urged a three-billion-dollar top on renewed Marshall Plan help over the next 15 months, instead of the $5,580,000,000 requested by President Truman's Administration.

Capehart thus joined Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and several other Senators in advocating substantial cuts in the multibillion-dollar aid program. Taft has recommended a one-billion-dollar reduction.

Citing this country's 251-billion-dollar national debt, along with falling prices and a leveling off in industry from the peak years, Capehart told his colleagues:

"I am afraid in another three years those European countries are going to be financing a recovery plan for the United States.

"I have not been opposed to this country participating in European aid and financing. I am opposed, however, to the utter disregard shown for our own economy in determining how extensive our aid to Europe should be."

Capehart said Europe's return to prewar production levels is borne out by official reports of the Economic Cooperation Administration, the Marshall Plan agency.

Meanwhile, he said, more than half the supplies already authorized for ECA shipment abroad haven't even left the country yet. He said the unshipped authorizations total $2,700,000,000, and with another three billion dollars in new authorizations should be ample to carry Europe over the next 15 months.

The Marshall Plan, he said, should be called the "European Finance Plan" instead of a recovery program.

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Senator Vandenberg, ranking GOP member, have both urged Congress to authorize the full amount asked by the Administration.

The debate over foreign-aid costs, originally set under a two-day time limit by Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.), was interrupted as Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) embarked on a long speech about the proposed North Atlantic defense alliance.

The Atlantic treaty, due to be signed April 4, will not cost money itself. But it is expected to be followed by an estimated one-billion to one-and-a-half-billion-dollar military aid program for rearming western Europe.

Donnell told the Senate that leaders of European nations regard the North Atlantic Pact as a moral—if not authentic—pledge by the United States to go to war if any of them is attacked.

First Corcoran Prize Awarded To New Yorker

Eric Isenburger, 46-year-old New York artist, has been awarded first prize in the twenty-first biennial exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

That was announced yesterday by Hermann Warner Williams, jr., gallery director, on the eve of the show's opening.

Two Are Well Known Here

In the latter group are two, Karl Knaths of Provincetown, Mass., and Nicolai Cikovsky of New York, well known in Washington art circles. Knaths has just finished a teaching term at the Phillips Gallery and an exhibit of his work is on display there now. Cikovsky formerly maintained a studio here.

In addition to Isenburger, who receives the W. A. Clark prize ($2000) and Corcoran gold medal, winners are: second Clark prize ($1500) and silver medal, Fred Conway, Webster Groves, Mo.; third Clark prize ($1000) and bronze medal, B. J. C. Nordfeldt, Lambertville, N. J.; fourth Clark prize ($500) and honorable mention certificate, Everett Spruce, Austin, Tex.

Knaths received second honorable mention; Cikovsky, third honorable mention; Hans Miller, New York, fourth, and Martin Jackson, Philadelphia, fifth honorable mention.

Presentation Tonight

Corcoran Thom, president of the Gallery's board of trustees, will present the awards at the opening tonight. About 2000 invited guests are expected to attend the opening, from 8:30 to 11 p. m. Gallery hours Sunday are 2 to 5 p. m.

Although only 187 canvases—half as many as at the preceding biennial—were selected for hanging, 15 Greater Washington artists are represented. Gallery officials say this is probably more than any other city except New York.

Local artists represented include: Sarah Baker, William H. Calfee, Omar R. Carrington, Eben F. Comins, Bernice Cross, Robert F. Gates, Mitchell Jamieson, Richard Lahey, Pietro Lazzari, J. Chapman Lewis, Jack Perlmutter, Marjorie Phillips, Jessalee Sickman, Prentiss Taylor and Eugen Weisz.

Magnuson to Head Insurance Probers

Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) has been named chairman of a Judiciary Subcommittee to investigate life insurance companies, with particular regard to the antitrust laws.

The selection was made by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) chairman of the committee.

Other members are Senators Kilgore (D., W. Va.), O'Conor (D., Md.), Langer (R., N. Dak.) and Ferguson (R., Mich.).

Bedell Smith's Resignation Is Accepted

President Truman yesterday reluctantly accepted the resignation of Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith as United States Ambassador to Russia.

Administration sources said a successor probably will not be chosen for a week or 10 days and that the difficult post is expected to go to a foreign service career officer well versed in diplomatic dealings with the Soviets.

They doubted that any of three men who have been mentioned would get the post. They are Ralph J. Bunche, United Nations mediator in Palestine; Charles E. Bohlen, State Department counselor and expert on Russia, and George F. Kennan, chief of the State Department's policy planning division.

Smith, who returned to this country last Christmas for a vacation and medical examination, will be given an Army field command.

He said he understood the command of the First Army at Governors Island, N. Y., was being held open for him. The command has been vacant since January 31, when Gen. Courtney H. Hodges retired.

Smith, 53, has been in Moscow for three years. When he returned to this country, he told Mr. Truman he did not want to go back. The President urged him to stay on but said later that Smith's health might force him to leave.

Asked for comment yesterday on the announcement that Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky will succeed Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin as Minister of Russian Armed Forces, Smith said:

"The new man is a professional soldier and a very able officer. Bulganin was less of a soldier than a politician and, of course, like a lot of the rest of us, he is not very young any more. But I don't know what interpretation to make of it."

Report Tells Of Terror in Soviet Camps

Berlin, March 25 (NYHT).—The first semiauthoritative picture of concentration camps in the Soviet occupation zone has just been published here under auspices of the American military government information services division. In these camps the estimated death rate—nearl one out of two—tells of a technique of terror in which slow starvation has replaced the gas chambers of Hitler.

The report consists of a compilation of all available data on arrests, kidnapings and disappearances in the Soviet zone and Berlin, plus the evidence of Germans who have escaped or been released. Most of the work was done by the newly established "German organization to combat inhumanity."

The American information division said it was satisfied the report represented a reasonably accurate picture.

The Soviet zone, according to the report, contains nine large concentration camps and an assortment of smaller ones.

Since 1945, 181,000 Germans have passed through these camps. Some 30,000 have been deported to Russia. About 79,000 died. About 27,000 were released.

At present the camp population is down to about 41,000. Another 40,000 are in various Russian or Communist jails.

The report estimates that in addition to those sent eastward "several hundred thousand other Germans have been snatched from their homes and jobs and sent to Russia for forced labor. "And this," the report adds "does not include the nightmare of the uranium mines (in the Soviet-zone Province of Saxony) where more than 100,000 men and women labor under inhumane working conditions so as to aid the rearmament of the Soviet Union."

The elaborate and complicated tortures of the Nazis do not appear to be duplicated in the Soviet-run camps. Death comes as a result of deliberate undernourishment of the weak and the condemned. Beatings and long interrogations are used by the Russians to get information or persuade people to confess. A frequently mentioned technique is immersion in hot and cold water up to the neck.

"He who does not possess the necessary labor power is destroyed slowly and cruelly by systematic and permanent undernourishment. This fate overcomes the old and sick and the feeble children," the report said.

Forrestal Backs:

'Mayo Clinic' Hospital Plan For Services

Defense Secretary James Forrestal yesterday approved plans for establishment of "Mayo Clinics" at several big Army and Navy hospitals.

He ordered joint diagnostic and treatment centers set up in several medical fields to provide more efficient treatment of certain types of disease and economy in the use of medical personnel.

Highly specialized Army and Navy doctors in these fields will be concentrated at the centers and patients will be sent there regardless of the service to which they belong.

This additional step in armed forces unification coincided with another unity move—transfer of the Army-Air Force Troop Information and Education Division to the Office of the Secretary of Defense. Its work of educating and keeping troops abreast of the times will be extended to the Navy and Marines.

In ordering the concentration of medical specialists at the new centers, Forrestal acted on the recommendation of the so-called Hawley Board, which has been working on medical unification for many months.

He also approved a proposal of the group to standardize medical education and training in the Army, Navy and Air Forces. One step will be consolidation of the U. S. Medical Bulletin and the Bulletin of the U. S. Army Medical Departments and similar merger of other medical periodicals.

At the start, it was said, only a few joint diagnosic and treatment centers will be created. Suggested fields are tuberculosis, psychotic and neuropsychiatric diseases, cancer, plastic and neurosurgery, amputation rehabilitation and prosthetics.

Reds' Leader Picks Peiping As His Capital

Nanking, China, March 25 (U.P.) Chinese Communist leader Mao Tzetung today established Peiping as the new seat of his government, the Communist radio announced.

The broadcast came as the Communists reportedly opened a major assault against the Yangtze River port of Anking, 145 miles solthwest of Nanking, and government peace delegates warned against undue optimism.

[Reliable official quarters told the Associated Preis today the hard-pressed Nanking government was being denied about 100 million dollars in treasury funds held by retired President Chiang Kai-shek's subordinates. Chinese officials say Chiang controls nearly a third of the government's hard specie assets.

[What in other countries promptly would become something of a major scandal has been held back for fear of Chiang, who still controls much of the nationalist army and the secret police. Officials do not accuse Chiang of holding treasury funds for his personal gain but as a stake in the game of power politics that divides nationalist China.]

Czechs Charge U. S. Violates Geneva Pact

Geneva, March 25 (AP).—Czechoslovakia has filed a formal charge that the United States' export licensing system constitutes a violation of the 23-nation Geneva Tariff Agreement of 1947.

The Czech complaint is expected to be a major political issue of the third regular session of the 23 contracting states to the agreement, scheduled to open in the near-by French town of Annecy on April 14.

Czechoslovakia's charge is based on a contention that the United States, by withholding licenses for certain exports to the Czechs, discriminates against Czechoslovakia in violation of the 1947 agreement.

Bevin, Gromyko Sail

Cherbourg, France, March 25 (U.P.).—The Queen Mary sailed for New York at 5:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. EST) today with an all-star list of diplomats including British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Reds May Close Three of Iran Consulates

Lake Success, March 25 (AP).—Informed sources reported today the Soviet government has decided tentatively to close three of its consulates in neighboring Iran, which has been under frequent verbal attack by Moscow. There still is a chance the situation will be ironed out without closing of the consulates, it was said.

The three consulates are at Tabriz, Meshed, and Ahwaz. The Russians are said to have asked the Iranians to close their consulate in Baku, Russia.

Strict censorship at Tehran has prevented any transmission abroad of the facts. The version reported here is that there has been no break in diplomatic relations and that the two countries are retaining their embassies in Moscow and Tehran, respectively.

At Washington, State Department officials said they had heard only rumors of the intended closing.

Rent Clause Agreed Upon

mortgage insurance program of the Federal Housing Administration. The agency's present authority to insure building loans under that section runs out March 31. The provision is not directly related to rent control but was dropped into the bill because both rent controls and FHA mortgage insurance extension are on the same tight time schedule and must be enacted into law at the same time.

The Housing Administration has requested an additional $800,000 to finance the program over the three-month period. Maybank said the three-month extension was granted to allow Congress time to work out a permanent continuation of the law.

Silver Spring Is Example

Sparkman said the directive to the housing expediter to decontrol the rest of unincorporated areas if the incorporated towns and cities had decontrolled the major portion of the territory was intended to cover situations such as that in Maryland, where Silver Spring, for example, is unincorporated and thus could not decontrol itself.

The conferees agreed, said, that trailer camps, motels and motor courts used for permanent residences can be recontrolled by the expediter at his discretion. Also apartments off the rental market for 24 months after February 1, 1945.

The American Federation of Labor yesterday appealed for final passage of a strong rent control law. The AFL expressed a preference for the Senate's version of local option, which, as in the conference agreement, permits the Governor to veto a decision by the town or city to decontrol.

Text of Compromise

Following is the text of the compromise "local option" provision:

The housing expediter shall terminate the provisions of this title (rent control) in any incorporated city, town or village upon receipt of a resolution of its governing body adopted for that purpose, appropriately substantiated and in accordance with applicable local law and based upon a finding by such governing body reached as the result of a public hearing held after 10 days' notice, that there no longer exists such a shortage in rental housing accommodations as to require rent control in such city, town or village; provided, however, that such resolution is first approved by the Governor of the State before being transmitted to the housing expediter; and, provided, that where the major portion of a defense-rental area has been decontrolled pursuant to this paragraph, the housing expediter shall decontrol any unincorporated locality in the remainder of such area."

Bank Obligations

Foley Calls Housing Loan Risks Duty

Raymond M. Foley, chief of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, said yesterday that banks and loan associations have an obligation to help solve the housing problems of their communities.

He said in a formal statement that the need is so great that residental loans no longer can be based solely on whether they are safe and profitable.

Both considerations still are "basically important," he said, but no banker who determines his lending policy on these factors alone can properly remain "an adequately functioning part of free enterprise or of the community."

Urges Active Part

Urging lending agencies to take an active and constructive part in helping their communities provide "shelter for their people and good environment for their children," Foley said:

"They should be trying to find ways to make their funds help to resolve the housing dilemma of the Negroes or other minorities.

"They should not dismiss the subject of housing cooperatives as unimportant. They may be very useful in urban housing, and are a very good field for investors to explore.

"They should not dismiss prefabrication as an illusion. It ought not be prevented from exercising its influence on cost and supply by unfounded prejudice by any institution or in any community."

Need For Combined Efforts

Foley said there is a "mass consciousness" of the need for combined efforts by private enterprise and State, Federal and local governments to provide "decent, livable housing for all American families."

"In the public consciousness," he said, "'all families' means just that.

"It means those of low income, those of middle income, as well as the most fortunately situated. It means those who live in rural and suburban areas, as well as in cities, and it means the slum-dwelling families and the Negro and other minority groups."

Hoover Urges Tax Revision

tablished to study and recommend means of improving the Government. Former President Herbert Hoover is chairman.

Coupled with its study of the tax situation, the commission explored Federal-State relations in general and recommended that the grant-in-aid program, under which the States administer projects partly supported by Federal funds, be "clarified and systematized." To accomplish these aims, the commission recommended establishment of a continuing agency on Federal-State relations.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, vice chairman, and Defense Secretary James Forrestal, a commissioner, did not sign this section of the report. They said it "seems to us to exceed the jurisdiction of a commission created to make recommendation regarding the organization of the executive branch," and that it had "little to do with the organization or even the functions of the executive machinery."

In discussing organization of an overseas administration, the majority of the commission did not recommend that it be set up, but "suggested" that it be studied. Chairman Hoover and Commissioners James K. Pollock and George H. Mead, however, wanted to recommend that the administration be established now.

As conceived by the commission, the overseas administration would absorb a multiplicity of duties now being performed by the State, Army, Navy and Interior Departments, the Economic Cooperation Administration and several independent offices. As it is visualized, the administration would be responsible directly to the President and would be supported by the State Department in matters of policy and by the Military Establishment in logistics.

It then would administer the occupied areas, the economic aid program, the territories and dependent areas and overseas and alien property affairs.

The majority of the commission indicated the Security Council as a "logical agency" to study its suggestion. It pointed out that the council "is concerned with both defense and foreign affairs and is now considering some of the organizational problems related to occupied areas."

In recommending closer coordination of Government research, the commission recalled that, in 1947, Federal expenditures for research, exclusive of atomic energy, totaled 625 million dollars. It said it was not exploring this vast program in detail, because this already had been done by the President's Scientific Research Board.

However, the commission continued, this board's report "makes it plain that a satisfactorily coordinated research program . . . has not yet been realized." It then said that any coordinating agency must "have roots in each department with major research responsibilities." Some Federal agencies already have coordinated research in that manner within their own framework, the commission added.

Ceremonies Set for Shift At Pentagon

Military pomp and ceremony will prevail at the change-over in the top civilian command of the Nation's armed forces, it was revealed yesterday.

Bugles will blow, ruffles and flourishes will be sounded and the Marine Band will play martial music as Secretary of Defense James Forrestal steps down and Louis A. Johnson takes his place at the Pentagon Monday.

All the ceremony was insisted upon by top uniformed personnel of the military forces somewhat against the will of the two principals. Ranking generals and admirals felt it only fitting to properly mark the passing of their old chief and swearing in of the new.

The exercises will take place at 11 a. m. in the center court of the Pentagon. All employes who can be spared will be released from their work to watch the ceremony. In case of rain, it will be shifted to the Pentagon Concourse.

Plans include a color guard and an honor guard of some 100 soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines. After Chief Justice Fred Vinson swears in Johnson, the latter and Forrestal will inspect the guard. Johnson, however, turned thumbs down on a plan for him to make an address and ordered the ceremonies kept as short as possible.

Mormons Set Dedication of County Chapel

Members of the Arlington Ward chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, using their own labor, will soon complete a church at N. 16th and Inglewood sts., Arlington.

Dedication is set for late in May. Construction was begun a year ago.

When the land was purchased before the war and plans first outlined, the cost was estimated at $75,000. It has now jumped to nearly $200,000.

Policy of the Mormon church requires that the local ward aid in financing at least 50 per cent of the cost of new buildings and that the structure be entirely paid for before dedication takes place.

Church leaders suggested that the 190-family heads in the ward give approximately 10 per cent of their yearly income to the building fund, in addition to their regular 10 per cent tithe.

In spite of this levy the church still fell short of its goal. As a result, members have responded with a contribution of about $24,000 worth of labor to assist in the construction.

The entire electrical contract was taken over by the ward, under the supervision of a licensed electrical contractor. Painting and finishing contracts were also taken over by members, and the basement was completed by ward members who plastered, painted and laid the tile floors.

Chairs formerly used in Constitution Hall were bought from the Daughters of the American Revolution for the chapel. They are being refinished by ward members and will be put in place soon. Later, they will be moved into an amusement hall when permanent pews are installed.

In addition to the chapel and amusement room, the red brick colonial church includes Sunday school and classrooms, workrooms, a Boy Scout troop room and a fully equipped kitchen.

Byron F. Dixon is bishop of the ward and has been assisted in the building project by First Counselor Wiley D. Goodsell and Second Counselor Ezra M. Parry.

Montgomery School Control Shift Passed

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Mar. 25—A bill giving the Montgomery County Council control over appointments to the county school board was passed tonight by the Maryland Senate.

Passage of the measure came as a surprise as it was known to bear administration opposition.

Under the bill, sent to the House, council members would submit a list of six nominees from which the Governor must fill school board vacancies.

At present, according to backers of the measure, the Governor selects school board members from names submitted by the Democratic State Central Committee in the county.

Two controversial issues in this session of the General Assembly—the soldiers' bonus and the University of Maryland bills—are slated for revival next week.

But what fate awaits the two measures in the closing hectic days of the 1949 session is anybody's guess. Adjournment is tentatively set for next Saturday.

Delegate Jerome Robinson (D., Baltimore), sponsor of the third measure this session aimed at requiring the University of Maryland to submit detailed instead of "lump sum" budgets, said today his bill would probably reach the House floor next Tuesday.

A move to get the bill out of committee with a favorable report yesterday failed because of an 11-11 vote. A motion which followed immediately to table the bill in committee carried.

Under the rules, Robinson explained, the bill can be petitioned out of committee. Tuesday would be the earliest possible date for this step, he said.

A move to suspend the rules and petition the 100-million-dollar bonus bill out of committee was forecast today by Delegate Benjamin A. Mrozinski (D., Baltimore).

On Thursday, the House after bitter debate sent the bill back to committee. Without a rules suspension, it could not be brought back for 15 days.

Today was the last day for introduction of bills this session without suspension of the rules.

An expected last-minute rush of new bills failed to materialize.

Monday, Governor Lane will "take over" the Legislature with his veto power. The Maryland constitution provides that the Governor can wait six days before acting on any measure which passes both houses.

He could, and frequently has, chosen to hold late bills enacted by the General Assembly the full six days until after the session when homeward-bound legislators are powerless to override the veto.

A bill is now pending which would permit the Legislature to recall such bills at the next session.

Isaac Franck, executive secretary of the American Fund for Palestinian Institutions, has been named executive director of the Jewish Community Council of Washington, it was announced yesterday.

FRANCK

Franck has served as executive director of the Brooklyn Jewish Community Council and as executive director of the Detroit Jewish Community Council. A graduate of Washington Square College, New York University, he has done graduate work at Columbia, Harvard and the University of Michigan and received his Jewish training abroad and at the Tarbuth and Herzliah Hebrew Teachers Seminaries in New York.

Organized in 1939, the Jewish Community Council of Washington is a planning and coordinating body for Jewish organizations in Washington, Arlington County and Alexandria, Va., and Montgomery County, Md. It is composed of 65 religious, educational, social service and fraternal organizations. The council has offices at 1420 New York ave. nw.

Protestants Held Neglecting Rural Areas in Missions

Philadelphia, March 25 (AP).—The Protestant Church is throwing its weight in the direction of the city to the neglect of the rural areas, a survey of 150 rural missionaries in 37 countries disclosed today.

J. Merle Davis of New York, research secretary of Agricultural Missions, Inc., told the opening session of the missions' conference that many of the missionaries deplored the channeling of church funds into large city medical and educational institutions.

The report stated that out of 14,339,989 Christians in Missions lands," 80 per cent live in the country, while of the 135,305 organized and unorganized Protestant churches, 90 per cent are in rural areas.

Broadcast to Aid Catholic Fund for Victims of War

Screen Stars Pat O'Brien and J. Carroll Naish will appear on a radio broadcast of "Joseph's Coat" over WMAL tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The program is being given to promote the Bishops' Fund for Victims of War campaign being conducted in Roman Catholic churches throughout the Nation. At the conclusion of the broadcast Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati will speak briefly.

Collection of funds for the drive will take place in the churches on Sunday. National goal is five million dollars. The Washington archdiocese goal is $75,000.

Funds raised will be used to aid the work of the two Catholic world relief agencies, the Bishop's Relief Committee and the War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

College Head to Speak

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, will speak at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Lane Asks Restoration Of Junior College Fund

Three tax supported junior colleges in Maryland received a boost today when Governor Lane urged restoration of a $56,000 cut he proposed in the State budget earlier in the session.

Montgomery County Junior College, at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, and two in Hagerstown and Baltimore would receive a total of $116,000 for 1949-50 under the proposal. Only $60,000 was allotted in the original budget.

Down Trend

Jobs, Output, Demand and Prices Drop

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Government figures on the Nation's economy—employment, industrial production, the cost of living, and shortages in primary commodities—all showed a downward trend as the week neared an end last night.

The trend was more pronounced because of its direct turnaround from a few months ago, than in the size of the down movement. Among the highspots were:

1. The Federal Reserve Board said February industrial output dropped a little bit more than 1 per cent from January. It was 3 per cent under the all-time high rate reached last October and November. It was 3 per cent below last February.

The Board didn't stop at this point. It added a forecast that production may decline further this month, partly due, it said, to the two weeks the coal mines were shut down on John L. Lewis' order. March production of some other products, such as oil and rayon, might further affect the month's record.

2. Robert C. Goodwin, head of the Employment Security Bureau, reported that 1,946,500 "continued claims" for unemployment compensation were filed last week—an increase of 6900 over the previous week.

However, claims for new unemployment dropped 9500 to 296,000. In other words only 296,000 new persons became jobless last week, or 9500 fewer than the week before. Goodwin credited warmer weather with making more outside jobs available, particularly in construction, and in lumbering in Western States.

3. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported its Wholesale Price Index showed a continued decline for the week ending last Tuesday. The index, at 158.2 per cent of the average for 1926, dropped two tenths of 1 per cent in a week, and was 2.6 per cent under the same week in 1948.

4. BLS at the same time reported a gain in average earnings for a large segment of the population. It showed that weekly earnings of 12,600,000 workers in manufacturing plants reached an average of $54.25 in mid-February, although the work week was about an hour shorter than a year earlier, when earnings were $51.75. Average hourly earnings were placed at $1.38, about 9 cents higher than last year.

5. Board Chairman Ernest T. Weir of the National Steel Corp., said in Pittsburgh that there is evidence that the steel industry will have surplus capacity by the end of 1949.

"I believe that by next January the steel industry will find itself again in what might be termed its normal condition of being overbuilt," he said. "In my opinion there is very little if any, actual shortage of steel today."

The day's business news was mixed.

Burroughs Adding Machine Co., at Detroit announced it would lay off 1500 employes April 1. It laid off 522 last month. The reason: "to bring manufacturing operations in line with current sales and unfilled orders."

In Amsterdam, N. Y., the Mohawk Carpet Mills announced a 2 per cent price cut on its entire line. It eliminated a price increase ordered March 1.

Three Lawrence (Mass.) textile mill equipment plants granted 600 workers, members of the CIO Textile Union Workers of America, a flat pay raise of 5 cents an hour.

Republic Steel announced a cut in the price of galvanized sheets up to $5 a ton.

In Chicago the price of tallow—important in soap making—dropped to 5 to 5⅛ cents a pound. That was the lowest price since 1941. The OPA wartime ceiling was 8⅝ cents.

In Washington the Agriculture Department told poultrymen they are raising too many broilers for their own financial good.

The agency said a 50 per cent increase in production this year, coupled with heavy farm sales of chickens, is likely to force prices to unfavorable levels in coming months.

Mrs. Bennett Heads Women Voter League

Mrs. James V. Bennett, 119 W. Leland st., Chevy Chase, Md., wife of the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, yesterday was elected president of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters at its annual meeting held in Cabin John. She succeeds Mrs. J. Rene Hemingway, Takoma Park.

Mrs. Bennett

Active in club work for many years, Mrs. Bennett has been chairman of the Chevy Chase Forum for the past eight years. A former vice president of the Chevy Chase Women's Club, and president of the Pembroke College Alumni Association, she served as director of Maryland housing for President Truman's inaugural committee.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. C. M. Derryberry, 111 Lexington dr., Silver Spring, vice president; Mrs. Louis Regeimbal, 2012 Lanier dr., Silver Spring, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harold Kramer, 117 Granville dr., Silver Spring, and Mrs. Gordon Street, 7002 Rolling rd., Chevy Chase, directors; Mrs. Irwin Wensink, 7220 Bradley blvd, Bethesda, nominating chairman for 1950.

A budget of $2720 was adopted. Discussion and adoption of a year's program of work and aims was postponed until the April 22 meeting due to the amount of time taken on the budget adoption.

Social Security Fund 'Deficit' Is $7 Billion, Altmeyer Says

Arthur J. Altmeyer, Social Security Administrator, yesterday said there is a seven-billion-dollar "deficit" in the Social Security old-age and survivors insurance fund.

It is not a current cash unbalance, he explained, but a lack of provision for future obligations created by promised benefits. The law guarantees payment out of the general treasury if Social Security cannot pay.

The deficit, Altmeyer said, accumulated as Congress from year to year "froze" the Social Security tax at one per cent on employer payrolls and employes' pay, refusing to let it go to three per cent on each as provided in the original act. In that process, individuals who will receive benefits built up future claims of seven billion dollars more than the Social Security tax collections against them.

But Altmeyer told the House Ways and Means Committee that if Congress now raises the payroll tax to 3 per cent each against employer and employe this will wipe out the deficit and provide for increased benefits under the program as proposed by President Truman.

The President has suggested that the tax be raised July 1 to 1½ per cent on each and to 2 per cent January 1. He suggested also that the tax be collected against the first $4800 of an individual's income instead of the present $3000.

House Revives Pension Bill

a 10 per cent (nonservice-connected) disability.

As age is a factor in determining nonservice-connected disability, most World War I veterans now can qualify for $72 payments at 65 if they can show need.

To do this, their other income must not exceed $1000 if single or $2500 if they have dependents.

Beyond writing the pension principle into law for World War I veterans, the new pension measure would do little more than lift the present income limitation.

Once it gets before the House Veterans Committee, however, it will be subject to amendments adding World War II veterans to the beneficiaries, and restoring some of the other more costly provisions of the Rankin original.

Another Spree Possible

Unless brought into the House under a "closed rule," barring any amendments, it could even touch off another wild voting spree on the too-hot-to-handle issue.

Rankin told newsmen, however, he was considering asking House consideration under a suspension of the rules, permitting no changes, but requiring a two-thirds majority for passage.

Representative Olin E. (Tiger) Teague (D., Tex.), wounded and 11 times decorated in World War II, who led the fight that shelved the Rankin original, told newsmen he would support the revised measure.

"It's a bill anybody can vote for," said Teague.

But Teague said there ought to be provisions so veterans exceeding the income limitation by a few dollars could participate in the benefits.

Representative John A. Carroll (D., Colo.), another World War II veteran who narrowly missed killing the Rankin bill Tuesday, said he wanted to study the new bill. Offhand, he thought its benefits are already available to veterans.

A Democratic leader, who asked not to be named, predicted it would "whiz through" the House.

Republican leaders said Rankin had offered the bill they were trying to write on the House floor when the original Rankin measure was shelved.

CCC $350 Million Lack Of Balance Alleged

Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.), told the Senate last night he has been informed that the books of the Commodity Credit Corp. are 350 million dollars out of balance.

He asked for an investigation but his resolution for the move was blocked by Democratic Leader Scott Lucas (Ill.), on grounds only a few Senators were on the floor.

Williams claimed the CCC "made no effort" to determine the accuracy of their loans.

House Group Cuts Fund for Child Centers

A House District Subcommittee yesterday voted a one-year extension of the Washington child day care center program and a two-thirds cut in city funds to operate it.

Subcommittee Chairman Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.) was authorized to present the revised day care bill to the full House District Committee with a $50,000 ceiling on the amount the District could spend on the program. Present authority for the center ends June 30.

A $150,000 appropriation is on hand in the current fiscal year, and according to Welfare officials, it represents the total that can be spent. Parents pay a part of the cost in fees, but these amounts go into the revenue of the District, and are not added to the city funds to increase the scope of the day care center program.

A different approach, however, is now planned by the subcommittee, members said. They intend to hold the city funds to $50,000, but to permit addition of parents' fees to the city funds, so that cutting back District money by two thirds would not necessarily mean cutting back the program by the same amount.

There are six centers now, serving some 270 children.

To Sign Customs Treaty

Paris, March 25 (NYHT).—A Franco-Italian customs treaty, aimed at the eventual fusion of the economies of the two countries, will be signed here tomorrow by Robert Schuman, French Foreign Minister and Court Carlo Sforza, Italian Foreign Minister.

Forecaster Says:

Cherry Buds May Burst Any Hour

A burst of cherry blossoms is only "hours away" National Capital Parks officials predicted excitedly yesterday.

Three hours of clear weather and a temperature above 50 today should do the trick they said and will make a fine display for the annual Cherry Blossom festival that opens next Friday.

Yesterday's high humidity and warm rain, they explained, are just the conditions that make cherry buds swell up and burst.

Although the overcast and scattered showers yesterday were fine for cherry blossoms they sent pedestrians scurrying for shelter and gave radar operators at Andrews Air Force Base a few worried moments.

At 1 p. m. a B-17 en route to Bolling Air Force Base was brought in safely to the Andrews field with only one radio channel operating and 20 minutes fuel left in its tanks.

At 3 p. m. a B-26 had to be brought down by radar when it developed engine trouble over the overcast field. Both planes were guided down by members of the 1909 AACS radar squadron.

Today the weather bureau predicts early morning showers that should clear by noon.

New Bolling Blaze Wrecks Hobby Shop

A $35,000 fire early yesterday at Bolling Air Force Base burned out a hobby shop and destroyed an altar saved from a base chapel blaze exactly one month earlier.

Another ironic twist reported by authorities yesterday was that repair of the earlier fire damage to the carved mahogany altar had just been completed at 4 p. m. Thursday, about ten hours before the hobby shop blaze.

Origin of yesterday's fire, which routed about 80 soldiers and WAAF's from sleep in nearby barracks, was not determined.

A one-story cinderblock structure, the special services hobby shop is about 50 feet away from barracks housing the WAAF's, bandsmen and Air Police. A few windows were cracked in the bandsmen's barracks.

The heat-cracking of windows in the bandsmen's barracks awakened Staff Sergt. Harold McDonald, 35, of Chippewa Falls, Wis., who woke the other men. An alarm had been turned in by Pfc. Lewis Whalen, 19, of Natick, Mass., on guard duty about a block away. He said it looked like a small fire when he first saw it.

The Catholic altar was in the hobby shop with such equipment as power saws, lathes, electric sanders, photo and other hobby equipment.

Equipment in the hobby shop, bought with Post Exchange profits, was valued at about $10,000, Capt. William Lookadoo, base public information officer, said. No one was in the shop at the time of the fire, he said.

After last month's chapel fire, authorities reported a 19-year-old Bolling Base airman had confessed he set it because he had not been allowed to teach Sunday school. The airman was reported still under observation at the base hospital yesterday.

Attorney's Son Under Bond

The 18-year-old son of a Justice Department attorney was placed under $1500 bond for grand jury action yesterday despite pleas of his father for a lower bond.

The youth, Leland Thomas Atherton, jr., 9728 Bexhill dr., Kensington, Md., has admitted breaking into a Maryland store and holding up two stores in Virginia in the past month, police said.

Judge Armond W. Scott, in refusing the request of the boy's father to lower bond, said he had a duty to the public.

Meantime, two other youths, one 16 and the other 17 years old, were in custody in connection with the robberies. The 16-year-old came in yesterday with his father and gave himself up.

Atherton's trail of crime, police quoted him as saying, started about a month ago when he and his young friend broke into a Bethesda hardware store and stole a .32-caliber and a .22-caliber pistol.

Then, according to police, the Berkley Bakery, 1515 Seminary rd., Alexandria, was held up March 4, with $150 taken; the High Ice Cream Store, 5435 MacArthur blvd., was robbed at gunpoint of $15 on March 22; and the High store, Shirlington, Va., of $12 the same night.

Young Atherton implicated the 16-year-old, who implicated the 17-year-old boy. The latter, police said, acted as driver for the other two boys and did not share in the proceeds. He told police the amount of money taken in the MacArthur blvd. holdup—$15—was not enough to split three ways, so the other two boys split it.

The worst experience in all the holdups, police quoted the 16-year-old as saying, was when holding up the bakery in Virginia. He pulled a gun on the woman attendant, he said, and the woman smiled. That stymied him, he told police, and he didn't know what to do.

He said he was "saved" by the presence of mind of the 18-year-old Atherton when Atherton went around behind the counter and took the money out of the cash register. That haul, $150, was the biggest of all the robberies.

Skirmish Won By Stage Over London Censor

London, March 25 (AP).—Britain's playwrights moved a step closer to triumph today in their long fight to abolish the Lord Chamberlain's power to censor plays.

The House of Commons passed on a second reading (acceptance in principle) a bill to repeal a 600-year-old law which gives the Lord Chamberlain the right to censor any play before licensing it for production.

The vote, after 3½ hours of debate, was 76 to 37.

A. P. Herbert, humorist and playwright, said the only trouble he ever had with censorship was over a line spoken in the House of Commons by M. P. Jack Jones.

Lady Astor, in one of her speeches, had said "I cannot understand how you men do such awful things to your stomachs."

Jones replied, "As for stomachs, I tell the honorable lady I will lay my stomach against hers any day."

2 Policemen Face Charges On Theft Loot

Two policemen have been suspended on charges of failing to turn in a pressure cooker they took from a pair of shoplifters, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett announced yesterday.

They are Privates Robert L. Carter, 35, anad James D. Williams, 37, both from the Second Precinct and both in the department for eight years. They were suspended after two men arrested at the corner of 7th and O sts. nw. as shoplifters, Tuesday complained that the arresting officers took from them a pressure cooker they had stolen from a hardware store in Rosslyn, Va., earlier in the day. They were attempting to sell the cooker when arrested, they said.

Capt. Clyde N. Strange, commanding officer of the Second Precinct, who ordered an investigation, said that the cooker was later found in Carter's car.

The charges that the policemen will face before a trial board are failing to make a proper record of property taken from prisoners and making a false statement to a superior officer.

One on the Aisle—

Copland's Score Enhances 'Pony'

By Richard L. Coe

Steinbeck's popular story, "The Red Pony." And more than outstanding in the Warner's new arrival is a superb score by Aaron Copland.

The story recalls such films as "The Yearling," "My Friend Flicka," "Smokey," and the better Lassie pictures. It is a distinct shame its generally quiet, unsensational approach should be marred by a harrowing scene showing the boy (Peter Miles) fighting off buzzards from the body of his dead pet. Since Republic obviously was aiming primarily at the juvenile trade, I can't think what tasteless insanity led them to include this brief but startling scene in a film which otherwise relies on the imaginations of its audience.

Copland's score is completely beguiling, a masterpiece of music for the movies. You're conscious that it's different from the moment the picture begins; a mood is set before the titles are shown, and to anyone familiar with Copland's music it's no surprise to find him as the film's composer.

There's a haunting, lovely quality to his tone descriptions of the California valley of the past, and when next year's "Oscars" come around I'll be very surprised if Copland's music is not in the running. Curiously enough, this is a film, not necessarily created for them, which admirers of music will relish. You'll also notice that, at seemly times, only words or silence come from the soundtrack. Would that Copland might be setting a trend.

"THE RED PONY." Republic release produced by Charles K. Feldman and Lewis Milestone. Screen play by John Steinbeck from his short novel. Photographed in Technicolor by Tony Gaudio. Music by Aaron Copland. Directed by Milestone. At the Warner.

The Steinbeck story probably is familiar to many. There are five principal characters: a young boy, aching for a pony or a colt of his own; his mother, who was born in the valley and loves its life; his father, once a schoolteacher and after some years of marriage still feeling a stranger in the valley; her father, a talkative old trailblazer who likes to recall the early days of the West; their hired hand, who has a way with animals and is idolized by their 10-year-old son.

Miles-Mitchum Effective

How the lad gets his pony, how he nurtures it and puts his trust in the hired man's knowledge only to have the Fates destroy the pet, is the basis for the leisurely, simple tale.

With the emphasis on character, it is unfortunate that neither Myrna Loy, as the mother, nor Shepperd Strudwick, as the father, are convincing. In the writing, their relationship is not too clear; in their playing, it is artificial. But the other three are winningly played.

Peter Miles, whom you saw in "Enchantment" (he's Gigi Perreau's brother in private life) is the lad, and he's about perfect in the part. His scene with his father on the latter's return is a neat approximation of that wordless link between a child and his parent.

Robert Mitchum is fine as the friendly, understanding hand. This is the sort of role in which Mitchum excels; his avoidance of sentimentality is a mark of his sturdy appeal.

Louis Calhern tackles the meaty role of the garrulous grandfather and you'll marvel at the skill this veteran actor has with his hands. Watch them as he sits in a rocker musing on the loneliness of the aged.

As I've said, I'm sorry that scene of the buzzards has been so graphically pictured. "The Red Pony," for all its leisure and unsatisfactory father-mother story, would have been a much better picture without the gore.

Bobo in Fine Voice, Good Form as Nats B's Bow, 5-4

My Story . . . By Joe Louis

Knocking Out Carnera Was My Biggest Thrill

(THE SEVENTH OF 15 INSTALLMENTS)

AFTER the fight Mr. Roxborough and Mr. Black took me and Chappie over to a big suite in the hotel in Detroit and there was a big party with music and liquor. I don't drink nor smoke any, and I didn't take anything that night, but I liked the party. Mr. Roxborough said the New York writers liked the way I worked. They said I was a good fighter. Then Mr. Jacobs and Mr. Black and Mr. Roxborough got papers fixed up for Mr. Jacobs to promote my fights in New York, with the Hearst papers to back me for the Milk Fund.

I don't think any writer ever told where we signed that contract, but it was in the men's room in that suite at the party that night. We went in there because the writers were really whooping it up.

There has been a lot of talk about Mike Jacobs using me for a sucker, but that's all wrong. If it wasn't for Mike Jacobs I would never have got to be champion. He fixed it for me to get a crack at the title, and he never once asked me to do anything wrong or phony in the ring. When I was in the Army and out of cash he was always good for a loan. He never wanted interest.

It was a friendly thing. I like "Uncle Mike." I knew he took a gamble on me. He made a lot of money through me, but he figured to lose, too. I don't forget things like that.

When we signed with Uncle Mike, Mr. Roxborough said we were really headed for the big money, and Chappie worked harder with me. He showed me what to do to open up a fighter who came in covered like Natie Brown. He said, "You got to use a can opener on fighters like Natie Brown." He figured an uppercut would be the can opener and it was. You get a few of those in, and you get the corner off. It worked good. The write-ups I got from the New York men put my name all over the U. S. then. I got into cartoon strips like Joe Palooka. I got onto postcards and in the Sunday magazines. They went for that Brown Bomber name big. Mr. Roxborough bought me a Ford car.

THE money got bigger. My end in the Natie Brown fight was over $7,000. When I knocked out Roy Lazer in the third in Chicago on April 12 I got almost $12,000. It never crossed my mind to be making that kind of money because by then I was a pro only ten months. Most fighters put in years before they get $10,000 for one bout.

Ten days after I beat Lazer I put Biff Bennett away in one round in Dayton, and three days after that I won from Roscoe Toles in Flint, in six rounds. On May 3, I dropped Willie Davis in Peoria in two rounds and four days after that I took Gene Stanton in Kalamazoo in three rounds. I felt fine. That was only one week before my 21st birthday. I bought a Buick for my birthday.

That Easter I had the house on McDougall Avenue all ready for my mother. I had it all fixed up for her in April. I kept making big money and I bought two more houses, one that my sisters, Emmarell and Susie, live in; one out in Wayne, Michigan, that my stepbrother, Pat Brooks, lives in. I pay the taxes on the houses.

People think I felt the best the night I won the world's heavyweight championship from Jim Braddock. I felt good when I got to be champ, but the biggest night was June 25 in 1935 when I beat Primo Carnera in Yankee Stadium, and the biggest days were the days before the Carnera fight.

I WAS a kid then. When I came into New York the people like to have swept me away. There were so many newsreel and newspaper cameras the lights got me blind. I had never seen so many writers before in one spot. I was never asked so many questions, not in all my life put together. Whatever happened to me before in other big cities happened 20 times bigger in New York.

I never had so many write-ups and pictures before. The writers asked so many questions I couldn't answer only a small part. I couldn't talk all they wanted. Some said I was sulky. It wasn't that. It was all too big and too much for a kid. But that's the way it looked to them and that's the way they tagged me, and it stuck all through my fighting.

IN NEW YORK I got to see Mayor LaGuardia down in City Hall and I gave him a letter from Mayor Kelly in Chicago. Then they took me to Mike Jacobs' office and I met with big shots in the fight business. I lived in Harlem a couple of days. I did a show in Harlem Opera House. I punched the bag and I made like I was training, and I came out on a stage with dancing girls. First time I got to do a show. I liked it pretty good, especially the girls.

A lot of papers have said I had racketeers around me when I was coming up, and when I was champ. They said Mr. Roxborough and Julian Black was in on numbers and things like that, and that Chappie did time for cutting a man. Whatever they were or whatever they did before they got to handle me, it had nothing to do with how they treated me. They never asked me to throw a fight. They never tried to work anything shady. I figured this way: the fight game is a tough game. They knew their way around.

THEY could protect me from racket guys because they knew the angles. Anyone who knows will say they never did anything but what was good for me. That makes sense, because what was good for me was good for them. Another thing, I had people around I could turn to.

Ted Jones who handles my books is a C. P. A. He was the first Negro ever got into the American Institute of Accountants. I got my lawyer Truman Gibson. He was a civilian aide to the Secretary of War. They have good reputations and they watch things for me. Up to now I have not made mistakes about who I had around me.

When Chappie Blackburn and our sparring partners went out to Pompton Lakes in New Jersey to get ready for the Carnera fight, the papers whooped it up, especially the Hearst papers. Big crowds came to our camp. I didn't know it then, because Mr. Roxborough didn't tell me, but New York gangsters tried to move in on us.

THEY asked Mr. Roxborough for concessions on picking pockets and on dice games around the camp. Some training camps gave concessions like that. We hired our own cops and kept them out.

I heard later from Mr. Roxborough that before the Carnera fight a New York mob got him and Mr. Black in a drinking place in Harlem. They tried to cut in on me. They told Mr. Roxborough I was a Negro fighter with Negro managers and we wouldn't go nowhere in the fight game in New York without they got behind us. This was some of Owney Madden's mid-town mob. They had pieces of other big fighters and they wanted a piece of me, but Mr. Roxborough said "No."

Newsom Holds Griffs To 4 Hits, Insults Ump

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 25.—Bobo Newsom, pitching for Chattanooga in a borrowed Washington uniform, took his ancient right arm out of storage today and you might say he played a part in a 5-4 defeat for the unhappy Nats.

Newsom, vowing he hadn't had a ball in his pitching fist all spring, came in like a lamb and was slugged for three runs by the Nats in the first inning. But after that, he was quite the lion, pitching three innings of scoreless, hitless ball against his old pals.

The Nats couldn't make their 3-0 lead stand up. From the second to the eighth innings, inclusive, they didn't get any kind of a hit off Newsom and a young right hander named Stan Zedalis. They ended up with only five hits for the day, and the only extenuation was the fact that Manager Joe Kuhel played his B team.

Chattanooga, held to four hits by Dick Welteroth and Bill Dozier, got the winning run in the eighth without a hit. A walk, a sacrifice, and Sam Dente's wild throw to first produced it, in the eighth, breaking a 4-4 tie.

Newsom was in trouble not only with the Nats but Umpire Joe Paparella, from the outset, and gave the 1000 Tinker Field fans a vocal performance.

The first three men to face him, Dente, Bevil and Simmons, rapped out hits. With Simmons at bat, Newsom screamed that Umpire Paparella did him dirt on a two-and-two pitch.

"You pitch strikes and I'll call 'em," roared Paparella.

The perspiring, red-faced Newsom who picked Orlando's hottest day of the season for his first pitching effort, cursed Paparella for all to hear, and the umpire cursed right back.

Actually, only one of the four hits Newsom gave up was a solid blow—Christman's single to center that drove in the third run.

Bobo Confers With Engel

Originally slated to pitch only three innings, Newsom was so well pleased with his performance, he pitched four. He wouldn't admit that he was trying to lend a job with Chattanooga and end his present unemployment, but after the game he was in close conference with President Joe Engel and Manager George Myatt.

Engel declared he was willing to sign Newsom.

Newsom, who said he had no intention of signing with Chattanooga before the game, declared afterward "maybe I'll have an announcement to make."

In one swipe, against Pitcher Dozier, Chattanooga wiped out the Nats' 3-0 lead. In the sixth inning, Wilbur Jackson, kid third baseman, late of Trenton, N. J., walloped a three-run homer over the left field wall to tie the game.

The Nats got in front with an unearned run, 4-3, in the sixth, but Chattanooga tied it up in the seventh, similarly without a hit. The Lookouts had the help of a wild throw by Okrie, and a fumble at second base by Bevil. In the eighth, no hit figured in the winning run. Cal Ermer walked, was sacrificed to second, and scored when Dente's wild throw got past Christman at first base.

Newsom Offered Job by Lookouts

Orlando, Fla., March 25 (AP).—Louis (Bobo) Newsom, much-traveled former major league pitcher, was offered a contract by the Chattanooga Lookouts here today after he pitched four innings against the Washington Reserves.

Chattanooga President Joe Engel said Newsom would pitch opening day in the Southern Association if he signed. Newsom told Engel he would make a decision in four or five days. Terms of the contract offer were not revealed.

Permane's Leg Saved, Faces Year Lay-off; Apprentice Suspended

Hollywood, Fla., March 25 (AP). Jockey Bobby Permane won't be booting 'em home any more this year. He was in "fair" condition in Hollywood Hospital today with a compound fracture of the leg and a broken collarbone, suffered in a spill at Gulfstream Park.

Hospital attendants said he would not ride again for "a long time."

"Not this year, anyway."

Permane underwent surgery on the leg today but the hospital said his leg was not amputated.

Apprentice Emil Flutie was suspended for the balance of the meeting by the track stewards.

Officials charged Flutie with crossing over astride Another Zac nearing the far turn, causing a jam. It was at that point that Claire Dauber, Permane's mount, and Tally fell.

C. U. Fights Virginia, Ennis Out

Stricken with a mild case of scarlet fever, Bucky Ennis, 155-pound knockout artist, was lost by Catholic University's boxing team for tonight's match against the University of Virginia at C. U.

Ennis was supposed to meet Virginia's Joe Miragliotta in one of the top bouts of the evening. Now C. U. Coach Eddie LaFond is in a quandary for a replacement. He said last night that he might draft one of his welters, Dick Trumter, who is out of training, as a replacement.

At any rate, Ennis' loss will not hurt attendance. The card has been a sellout for several days.

A Washington boy, Allen Smith, will box as a heavyweight for Virginia. He'll meet Charley Rohr, and hopes to avenge a loss suffered at the lanky Cardinal's mitts last season.

Smith has been up against the best college heavyweights in the sport this winter. He slugged it out for three rounds with Army's Bill Kellum, who belted out Rohr in the first, and gave a good account of himself against Miami's Art Saey and Marty Crandell of Syracuse. He didn't win but showed enough durability and aggressiveness to put Rohr on guard.

Virginia's hopes of humbling the unbeaten Cards apparently lies in lighter classes. It has two Eastern champions in Allen Hollingsworth, 130-pounder and Lightweight Grover Masterson. Basil Miragliotta is rated close to the top among 145-pounders, winning from highly touted Ray Avant of South Carolina and Art Davis of Miami. He drew with Berl Jobe of L.S.U. and also with Tim Wiggins of The Citadel in other bouts.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., MARCH 25.—On one point, you could get a solid vote from the Nats. They're convinced that their colleague, Sid Hudson, is headed for his best year in the majors and that includes his sensational freshman season when he bobbed up with 17 victories.

There's a voluble Hudson boom in the Washington training camp and it is not unreasonable. The skinny, blondish Tennessean has looked to the Nats like the hottest pitching article in Florida. In three starts, over a span of eleven innings he has given up one earned run, and struck out seven.

POVICH

That latter item is what pleases Hudson personally, because he has been getting his strikeouts with both his fast ball and his curve. "Not a twinge in the arm or the shoulder," he says happily after two seasons of suffering with assorted pains in those sectors. "I never threw harder and I never felt better."

It's in Hudson's direction that Manager Joe Kuhel is looking for his club's greatest improvement. Sidney won only 4 games last year, lost 16. "He could turn those figures around," Kuhel declares.

NO ROOKIE EVER hit the big league pitching scene with quite the sensationalism of Hudson, who was a D league first baseman two years before he moved up to the majors to win 17 games as a pitcher in 1940.

In the days when $5500 was an unheard-of-price for a D league rookie, that's what the Nats paid for Hudson in 1938. Clark Griffith thought his Florida operative, the venerable John Ganzel, was daft when he recommended Hudson's purchase at that price tag. He felt he was merely indulging Ganzel when he agreed to the buy.

Ganzel had picked wisely, though. He was no green pea in baseball. Back in 1904, he was Clark Griffith's first baseman with the old New York Highlanders, and he was a teammate of Connie Mack's at Milwaukee in 1887. He was managing Griffith's Orlando team n 1938 when he was first smitten with Hudson, then pitching for Sanford.

MIDWAY OF THE SEASON Ganzel obtained an option for the Washington club. He was eager to grab it up, when Hudson finished the year with 24 wins, only 4 defeats. Above all, he wanted Hudson to make a good impression with Griffith.

"He was green about some things," relates Ganzel. "I don't mind saying now that there were days when I was managing Orlando and Hudson was pitching against us, that I used to coach him in hiding his pitches. I wanted to learn him everything I could before Griffith got a look at him."

Ganzel didn't have to high-pressure Bucky Harris into liking Hudson the spring the tall boy reported to the Nats' camp. "You'd never believe this kid came out of a D league," observed Harris, who promptly went into a spasm of delight over Hudson. "I never saw a better looking rookie pitcher come into a big league training camp."

HARRIS STARTED Hudson in the first week of the season. He was knocked out of the box. Eight times in a row, Harris gave him a shot at starting a ball game and he lost only eight. But Harris' patience paid off. Hudson shut out the Tigers in his ninth start. He won four more in a row. He wound up the year winning 17 and losing 16 despite those initial eight defeats.

Sure, he was a bit nervous about it in the beginning, Hudson says. "They were hitting everything I threw up there, and that makes a fellow wonder about himself. The seventh and eighth-place hitters began to look just as rugged to me as the clean-up men. They all looked tough.

"Then when I started winning, things became different. I got some confidence in myself, and began to realize that I was beginning to look tough to the same hitters I thought were so tough. You'd be surprised what a difference that makes. They weren't taking any toe-holds any more and I could see I was commanding their respect. That's a nice feeling, for a pitcher."

Yanks Blank Phillies With Two Hits, 6-0

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24 (AP).—Allie Reynolds and Rookie Wally Hood limited the Philadelphia Phillies to two singles today as the New York Yankees carved out their third shutout of the spring training season, 6-0.

Reynolds worked the first seven innings and was touched for just one blow, a third-inning infield single by Del Ennis. Richie Ashburn picked up the other Philly hit off Hood.

Joe DiMaggio delivered a pinch single in the seventh inning to launch a three-run session for the victors.

Caps Get Feel of New 'Home' Floor at Armory Court Today

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Weary but wealthier, the Caps rested yesterday before embarking on another foray in quest of more goals and gold.

The one-day picnic the Eastern Division champs enjoyed ends this morning when they journey over to the National Guard Armory for the first of three practice sessions designed to acquaint them with their new "home" court.

They swing back into action in round two of the playoffs against either New York or Baltimore on the Armory floor Tuesday.

The second game of the best of three series is on the road with the rubber game, if necessary, at the Armory next Saturday night.

New York anad Baltimore are tied with one victory each in their current set with the decisive game coming off tonight in Madison Square Garden. The Caps hope the Knicks eliminate the Bullets because they feel they can dispose of the New Yorkers much easier than they can Baltimore.

The second round schedule definitely favors Washington. The first game is the big one in a short series and the Caps play that one on a home court, or a reasonable facsimile thereof inasmuch as they were denied the use of their very own court because of a daffy piece of scheduling at Uline's which rented the Cap court to a circus beginning next week.

Unlike their set with Philadelphia, which saw the battered locals play two games in as many evenings, the second-round scuffles are spaced out, set for every other day. This is the big break for Washington. It gives Fred Scolari and Matt Zunic, who are aching (literally and figuratively) to return to action, time to rest their respective wounds.

Scolari's finger is better and he's a good bet to be ready to go by Tuesday. Zunic's ankle has improved, also, and he'll definitely play. The other cripple, Bob Feerick, is out, but definitely.

In eliminating Philadelphia,

LaMotta Wins, Crowd Boos

New York, March 25 (AP).—Jake LaMotta, the one-time iron man of The Bronx, tonight won an unpopular, split decision victory over Robert Villemain, a little game cock of a fighter from France, in the feature 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden. Villemain weighed 158, LaMotta 160¼.

The 11,491 fans who paid $38,064 booed and jeered the verdict for over five minutes. The squat, aggressive Frenchman forced the fight all the way and seemed to have earned a clear cut decision.

Judge Charley Shortell voted for Villemain, seven rounds to four with one even. Judge Harold Barnes scored it in favor of LaMotta, 6-5-1 while Referee Harry Ebbets voted for LaMotta, 6-4, with two even. The Associated Press score card had Villemain ahead, seven rounds to four with one even.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, wasn't pleased with the verdict. He said "the commission will look into the matter."

Terps Place Four in Finals; Take Lead

Special to The Washington Post

Columbia, S. C., March 25.—Maryland's hustling Terrapins took over the team lead and advanced four men to the finals of the Southern Invitational boxing tourney at the South Carolina gym here tonight before 4,000 rabid fans.

Eddie Reider, Heinie Miller's slashing 155-pounder led the quartet of Maryland winners when he scored a TKO over The Citadel's highly regarded Ray Heatley in 25 seconds of the third round. Spencer Hopkins, the Terps' 130-pounder beat Georgetown's Bob Connolley; Don Oliver, Maryland's 145-pounder scored a decision over Hoya Bob Charlton while Bob Gregson, 165-pounder completed the Terps winning derby with a win over Charlie Hall of South Carolina.

Bob Smith, 175, was the only Terp to falter, losing to Miami's Bernado.

Behind Maryland in point totals comes the host team, South Carolina with 14 to the Terps' 17. LSU, rallying after a bad start, is third with 11. The Citadel follows with 7, Miami, Georgetown and Georgia have 4 each.

The Hoyas took it on the chin in all three fights. Besides Connolley and Charlton who lost to Maryland men, little Pat Palumbo lost a close decision to Charlie Lee of Georgia. But Palumbo may get into the finals yet as Lee got a bad thumb out of the fight and may not go tomorrow.

The tourney still shapes up as a close race with Maryland, LSU and South Carolina all in the race. Best fight on tonight's card of eight finals may be the heavyweight go between Georgetown's Ray Larrow and Citadel's Bill Ohlandt. Ohlandt won the right to face Larrow with a driving win over Art Seay of Miami.

Three of the four surviving Marylanders meet South Carolina foes tonight.

43 Jumpers Ready

Cromwell Favored in 103d Grand National 'Chase Today

Aintree, England, March 25 (AP).—Some 300,000 persons are expected to watch the 103d running of the historic Grand National Steeplechase tomorrow over this 4½-mile "jumper's nightmare" course.

Perfect racing weather is forecast.

Owners, remembering an incident a year ago when an irritant wad was fired at one horse, enrout e to the starting gate, insisted on police protection until the expected field of 43 jumpers breaks from the wire tomorrow at 10:15 a. m. (EST).

In London tonight, the final call-over of odds by bookmakers made Cromwell the 6-to-1 favorite; Cloncarrig, 10-1; Dorothy Paget's Happy Home, 100-6; Royal Mount and Bricett, 20-1; Roimond, 22-1; Cavaliero, 25-1; Flaming Steel, 28-1, and Ulster Monarch, 33-1.

Kentucky Meets Oklahoma Aggies for NCAA Crown Tonight

Houtteman Hurt . . .

Rolfe's Rosy Dreams for Tigers Fade

(This is another in the series of articles on the prospects of major league baseball teams this year.)

By Joe Reichler

Lakeland, Fla., March 25 (AP).—It took Red Rolfe a little over a week to learn why big league managers get old and gray before their time.

Just a few short weeks ago, the new leader of the Detroit Tigers was predicting a first division finish, with an outside chance of winning the American League pennant.

Then the roof caved in. The roof belonged to an automobile. Young Art Houtteman, one of the Tigers' better pitchers, was in the automobile when it was demolished by a truck. Houtteman sustained a fractured skull and Rolfe's pennant dream went up in smoke.

"I was fairly optimistic until the injury to Houtteman," Rolfe admitted. "That hurt us more than anyone realizes.

"I honestly thought we would battle Boston, Cleveland and New York for the championship," he continued. "Now I don't know. We got hit in the most vulnerable spot. We're awfully thin in pitching."

Rolfe said he planned to rotate Newhouser, Fred Hutchinson, Virgil Trucks and Ted Gray as his starting staff. He had intended to transform veteran Dizzy Trout into a relief hurler. Now with Houtteman out for an indefinite period, he is forced to return Trout to a starting role.

"If I don't get help from kids like Lou Kretlow, Saul Rogovin, Marv Grissom and Marlin Stuart, we'll be in a bad way," he moaned. "Two of the four must come through for us to make any kind of a decent showing. I'd like to hang on until June 15 when Houtteman may be ready. Then we'd be in position to come some trouble."

First Base Weak

Rolfe was pleased with his outfield and catching as well as the left side of his infield. However, he was worried about first and second base.

"I'm not satisfied with first base," Red said.. "George Vico looked like he was coming along fine last year, but stopped and has made no progress this spring. Right now he's battling with Paul Campbell and Tony Lupien for the job. We're not too bad off at second, but neither Eddie Lake nor Neil Berry will hit much. I haven't yet given up on getting Jerry Priddy from the St. Louis Browns."

Rolfe called George Kell, his third baseman, a real pro.

"He makes the kind of plays you like to see," Rolfe said. "He does those things that mark the real polished ball player. At the plate he's like a fine quarterback. He can do everything.

Johnny Groth, rookie sensation, is in centerfield. Hoot Evers, who played center last year, moved over to right, with Dick Wakefield and Pat Mullin battling for the regular left field position. Vic Wertz, last year's regular right fielder, also is in the running. If he should beat out Wakefield and Mullin, he will go to right, with Evers switching to left.

"Groth is going to be one of the great centerfielders," Rolfe enthused. "Already he does nearly everything better than most big league outfielders."

Aaron Robinson, acquired from the Chicago White Sox, will handle the brunt of the catching. Bob Swift will understudy him. Myron (Joe) Ginsberg, up from Williamsport, has made a fine impression on Rolfe.

It's Wildcats 32nd Game This Year

Seattle, March 25 .—The end of a long, long basketball trail comes tomorrow night for the Wildcats of Kentucky when they battle Oklahoma's Aggies for the National Collegiate crown.

With hardly a break in the training grind, Coach Adolph Rupp's defetnding NCAA champs have had the "men at work" sign up since the start of the 1947-48 hoop season.

Last season they went through a rugged schedule of more than 30 games, capping it with the Olympics and summer appearances in Europe. Several of them—notably forward Wallace "Wah-Wah" Jones—went from basketball into football and then right back to the court game.

The clash with Oklahoma A. and M. tonight at 9:30 (PST) will be their thirty-second gamethi s season. They have lost only to St. Louis University and to Loyola. Coach Hank IBA's Aggies have won 22, lost 4.

Aggies After Third Crown

The Midwest and the Northwest will collide in the preliminary fracas to decide third and fourth places nationally. Illinois, runner-up to Kentucky in the Eastern play-offs, will meet Oregon State at 8 p. m. The Staters copped the Pacific Coast crown and bowed to Iba's crew in the Western finals.

Tickets for the big show could be sold today at any price the holder cared to name. For six weeks the 12,000 seats in Edmundson Pavilion at the University of Washington have been sold out.

Oklahoma A. and M., the only school to hold more than one NCAA basketball title, will be aiming for its third crown in five seasons. Six seniors will be playing their last games for IBA, who hopes to match a ball-control strategy against the speed and shooting ability of Kentucky.

Four Kentuckians Seniors

Rupp has only four seniors, but all rate with the Nation's best and they'll be in the spotlight as they close out their college basketball careers, they are the little speedball guard, and wheelhorse, Ralph Beard; tall center, Alex Groza; forward and football star "Wah-Wah" Jones, and tricky Clifford Barker.

Hoover Stars In Jr. Glovees

Twelve bouts were held last night at the Southeast Branch of the Police Boys Club to complete the preliminaries of the eighteenth annual Junior Golden Gloves boxing tournament. Semifinals will be held next Friday and the finals April 8.

Clyde "Kentucky" Hoover pounded a TKO over Pete Chaconas after 1:47 of the third round. Eddie Burton was awarded a TKO when he opened a cut over Struder's eye.

St. Mary's of Annapolis Seeks Berth in D. C. Catholic League; New Track Coaches Named

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

St. Mary's High of Annapolis, which finished third in the Tri-State League, has applied for admission to the tougher Metropolitan Washington Catholic League.

Father Joseph Geib, S. J., of Gonzaga, newly elected president of the Catholic League, says that the application will be acted on in time for the football season.

Meanwhile, Gonzaga, St. John's DeMatha and Georgetown Prep are putting St. Mary's on their 1949 grid schedules.

At McKinley Tech, Harry Smith, former University of Illinois athlete, replaces Woody Smitherman. Smitherman takes over baseball, succeeding Bob Walker, who becomes a counselor for boys at Tech.

Reno Continetti, at Montgomery Blair, moves from the baseball coaching post to track. His successor at the baseball job is Stan Kulakowski earstwhile biology teacher and former Western Maryland athlete.

Frank Kley, former George Washington U. footballer, is the new track coach at Eastern, succeeding Joey Kaufman, who enlisted in the Army. Bobby Hart, Eastern's basketball coach, adds baseball coaching to his duties.

Al Thomas, who moved from his native Washington in 1934, has been named manager of the New Market (Va.) club in the new Class D Valley League. Thomas, a pitcher, had a brief fling with the Cardinals and Giants in 1945 and '46 . . . Johnny Klippstein, the Montgomery Blair pitching product, has been sold by the Cards to the Dodgers, and will be farmed to a Class AAA team. Klippstein pitched for Columbus in the American Association last season . . . Wooster (Ohio) College's ace right-handed pitcher is Herb Benson, former baseball and basketball star at Bethesda-Chevy Chase . . . The University of Virginia will have an All-D. C. battery combination next season. Already on the varsity mound staff is Right-Hander Tom Evans from Wilson High. First string catcher on the freshman team is Donnie Strain of Western High.

Oxford Favored In Crew Renewal

London, March 25 (AP).—Sixteen college boys in two long, frail boats will row lickety-split up the curling Thamcs River tomorrow to decide for the ninety-fifth time whether Oxford or Cambridge is best at "crew."

About half a million people, most of whom never got near the scholarly halls of either school, are expected to line both banks of the Thames all along the 4¼-mile course.

The racing experts who have been drumming up enthusiasm in the papers figure Oxford will win.

Talbert Routs Kovaleski in Net Semifinals

By Austin Bealmear

New York, March 25 (AP).—Defending champion Billy Talbert of New York crushed Fred Kovaleski of Detroit, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1 in the semifinals of the National Indoor Tennis Championships tonight and will meet Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles for the title tomorrow.

Gonzales, the top-seeded turf court titleholder, won his way to the finals by turning back former indoor champion Don McNeil of New York in the other semifinal, 4—6, 6—4, 9—7, 6—3.

Talbert had no such struggle with the William and Mary College player, who came into the tournament seeded seventh and proved to be the dark horse by knocking off such campaigners as third-seeded Earl Cochell of San Francisco and the French veteran, Jean Borotra.

Kovaleski's brilliant volley and smashing overhead game which had carried him to an upset over Cochell gained him nothing against the court-wise Talbert, who is at his best on the boards.

Talbert never gave his taller opponent a chance to get to the net. Kovaleski's return of service was adequate but whenever he moved toward the net, Talbert whistled perfect passing shots by him or lobbed neatly over his head.

Stranahan's 66 Leads at Greensboro

Greensboro, N. C., March 25 (AP).—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, led after the first round lead in the $10,000 Greensboro Open today with a five-under par 34-32—66.

He had to compete against a field of 150 and a steady rain that fell through the first 15 holes of his match. And even with this his round equaled the competitive course record.

A stroke back of him were three strong professional contenders, defending champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, John Bulla of Pittsburgh and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C. Bulla finished early with 34-33—67, the other two came in late with 35-32.

The 68 bracket included Cary Middlecoff, Memphis dentist who's finished one-two in the last five tournaments on the circuit; veteran Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Dick Metz, Virginia Beach, Va.

South African Bobby Locke, Glenn Teal of Jacksonville, Fla., and Ted Kroll of Philmont, Pa., were right behind at 69.

5 Trot Tracks May Operate

Senate OK's 125 Harness Days, Pimlico Shift to Stand

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—The Senate gave tentative approval today to a bill calling for the abandonment of old Pimlico race track and the consolidation of its race meetings with Laurel.

The vote was 18-11. The measure will come up for final Senate action within a day or two. If passed, it will go to the House for consideration.

The Maryland Jockey Club owns both tracks. It feels there is not room enough at Pimlico, in Northwest Baltimore, for further expansion. The State Racing Commission has approved the transfer.

The Jockey Club would be able to spend the $700,000 now earmarked for improvements at historic Pimlico for expansion of the Laurel racing plant, located midway between Baltimore and Washington.

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—The Senate ignored a warning today that it was assuring the doom of Maryland horse racing. It moved ahead a bill to allow 125 days of harness racing a year.

Senators approved a finance committee report which would:

Allow the State Racing Commission to license two tracks for trotters and pacers in addition to the three already approved.

Permit the commission to extend each track's meeting from 20 to 25 days, raising the total season to 125 days.

Over the vigorous objection of Senator Della (D., Baltimore Sixth), Senators approved the bill by a 19-7 vote. The real test came earlier on adoption of the first committee amendment, which won by six votes.

"If this bill passes," Della asserted, "my prediction is that we will have no racing in Maryland in 25 years.

Lacy Gets 20, Breaks Record

Denver, March 25 (AP).—Jim Lacy, the Baltimore college boy, who has been drafted by the professional Washington Caps, scored 20 points here tonight to break the all-time individual college basketball scoring record.

Despite his efforts Lacy's team, Loyola College of Baltimore, was beaten by Regis of Denver in the semifinals of the National Catholic Basketball tournament, 67-60.

His 20 tonight gave Lacy a total of 2178 points for his four-year college career, 17 more than the old record of 2161 which was held by Brooms Abramovic of Salem College, who played from 1939-43.

Lacy got 14 of his 20 in the first half tonight. He has still has another game to go, the consolation finals here tomorrow night.

Six Are Indorsed To Succeed Mitchell As President of CSC

These are among those who have been indorsed by various groups and individuals to succeed able Harry B. Mitchell when he retires as president of the Civil Service Commission:

Kenneth O. Warner of the National Security Resources Board, who has the support of several top Arkansas Democrats; Henry Iler, chairman of the employes' compensation appeals board of the Federal Security Agency, who has the backing of some Kentucky Democrats, and Malcolm Kerlin, the long-time executive officer of the Commerce Department, who has considerable Government support for the important post.

Donald S. Dawson has been indorsed by the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes and several other groups for the post. However, he's satisfied where he is—as administrative assistant to the President. Also uggested for the post is William Parsons, administrative officer of the Treasury Department. But like Dawson, he's satisfied where he is. Joe Chambers, a professional staff member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, has been recommended for the appointment.

OPPOSITION to the proposed executive order which would make it easier for some war service and temporary employes to get classified status has been voted unanimously by the Federal Career Employes Association.

The group said the order "would be inconsistent with efforts to raise efficiency standards and it would be directly detrimental to those applicants qualified by competitive examinations." It charges that war service and temporaries who are qualified and who took and passed competitive tests have regular status by this time.

Also, the association is fighting the proposed order because upward of 1500 career people here are jobless. It believes these people should be given top priority for the jobs and it accuses the Civil Service Commission of failing to solve this problem.

The association's resolution appears to be based on the belief that the 45,000 war service and temporaries here would get classified status under the proposal. That isn't the case. What's up for a White House decision is this—whether an order should be issued by the President to give all war service and temporaries who were in Government on or before March 15, 1942, a chance for regular status. A few thousand here at the most would be eligible for status.

EXPORT CONTROL: Commerce officials met yesterday on how to make layoffs in this office. These decisions were made:

(1) To make the layoffs gradually and on a planned basis; (2) to send out the first batch of 30-day notices within a week or 10 days, and to give notice to the last group on May 1; (3) to hold down the number to be fired as low as possible, and (4) to help transfer export control employes to other Commerce agencies. The maximum number to be laid off is 150. Officials hope it can be held down to about 100.

In a plea for funds to continue the present export control staff, Frank Cawley, Commerce's budget officer, told the Senate Appropriations Committee:

"I think the record should show that if we are not permitted this restoration of $115,000 we will have to immediately discharge 150 employes, and that is 20 per cent of the staff. It would have a serious effect on the continued operations of the export control function." The money Cawley asked for was denied by the committee. Earlier, the House rejected the request.

JOBS: State and local offices of the Bureau of Employment Security are accepting applications for: 200 veterinarian jobs in the Agriculture Department for duty in this country and in Mexico, and 200 vocational training teachers for jobs in the Army Air Forces. For further detail, go to your nearest office of the United States Employment Service.

Arlington Tavern Raided

Arlington police yesterday raided a tavern and charged Russell Roy, 32, of 2117 N. Cameron st., Arlington, with operating a numbers lottery.

The seven policemen, headed by Detective Capt. C. B. Pressley, entered Hicks' Beer Garden, 4605 Lee hwy. at 11:30 a. m. and arrested Roy when they said they found a quantity of numbers slips on his person. He was released in $500 bond for a hearing in County Court at 9:30 a. m. Thursday.

28 Men Arrested in Eight Gambling Raids

Fay Doesn't Tell Police

Covell, commander of the First Precinct, paid a personal visit there four hours before the raid and came away convinced nothing was wrong.

Fay's office said other big-time gamblers netted in yesterday's raids included Walter (Sonny) Mason, 38, of 760 Newton pl. nw., arrested at 1935 17th st. nw., and Phil Harris, alias Phil Samakow, arrested at 3020 Queens Chapel rd., Avondale, Md.

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly, who interviewed those arrested as they were brought in, said at least three and possibly four gambling rings were crippled by the raids.

Sam Beard and "Snag" Lewis head two of the rings, he said. Mason is affiliated with the Warring brothers faction, and Harris may be head of a fourth ring.

"Sonny" Mason Arraigned

The raids took place shortly after 3 p. m., but it was 5:45 p. m. before the first gambling suspects were taken before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence for arraignment.

First to appear was "Sonny" Mason, who was charged with operating a lottery in that he sold a chance on a lottery on Tuesday at the 17th st. address.

Then came two brothers, William Quinn, 27, of 1018 South Carolina ave. se. and John Quinn, 41, of the Harrington Hotel. They were charged with setting up a gaming table in that they accepted a horse bet at Barbour's newsstand on January 6.

Others Arraigned

Others arraigned before Lawrence were:

Walter C. (Dan) Plummer, 37, of 6228 North Dakota ave. nw, a waiter at Hammel's Restaurant, who was charged with setting up a gaming table in that he accepted a horse bet on Wednesday.

Harry Kopel, 61, of 416 10th st. nw., coowner of Hammel's Restaurant, who was charged with permitting gaming in that he permitted a horse bet to be made in his restaurant on March 23.

Kopel, denying the charge, told reporters, "I don't know a blessed thing about it. I operate a legitimate business. I have always been known as an honest restaurant owner. All I can say is I don't know anything about it."

Frederick C. Whiteoak, 31, of 1504 Oates st. ne, who was charged with setting up a horse race gaming table at that address between the period of January 1, 1947, and September 1, 1948.

(When Whiteoak's hearing was continued until April 12, his attorney, Charles E. Ford, protested, demanded an immediate hearing and accused the Government of subterfuge. The Government refused to guarantee Ford that Whiteoak will not be indicted for the charge before April 12.)

Apologizes to Lawrence

Garner S. Barbour, 51, of 1325 Allison st. ne, charged with setting up a horse race gaming table on or about January 6 at the 427 10th st. address and permitting a horse bet to be made.

(When Barbour made a mock salute to Commissioner Lawrence, the latter warned him, "None of your funny business here or I'll raise your bond to $5000." Barbour apologized).

(In all the above cases, the men were freed in $1500 bond each and their hearings continued until April 12.)

Henry E. Fish, about 55, of 1007 K st. nw., arrested at Hammel's Restaurant, charged with setting up horse race tables.

Arrested in Bladensburg

Also taken before Commissioner Lawrence were the following 14 men, all arrested at the 46th st. address in Bladensburg and charged with operating a lottery by selling lottery chances to persons in the District:

B. J. Delnegro, of 2428 Tunlaw rd. nw.; William "Snag" Lewis, 4335 Blagden ave. nw.; Dean Kennedy, 2100 Queens Chapel rd., Avondale, Md.; Ellis Solet, 2805 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va.; Fred Sutton, 1210 6th st. nw.; Amos Wycke, 122 F st. nw.

Ralph Spotsworth, 318 N. Henry st., Alexandria, Va.; Tommy Black, 637 L st. se.; George Scott, 1031 E st. se.; Edward L. Hinkle, jr., 811 Presidential Gardens, Alexandria, Va.; Fulton J. Mitchell, 517 10th st. ne.; Gregory A. Seger, 2801 22nd st. se.; Sterling Welch, 4611 Verplanck pl. nw. and John R. "Billy" Mitchell, 3110 10th st. ne.

Say Cash Was Seized

Billy Mitchell's attorney Denny Hughes, charged at the hearing that $17,000 in cash was taken from his person for which he received no receipt. "Snag" Lewis said $2425 was taken from his pocket.

Hughes, along with Charles E. Ford and Myron Ehrlich, the three attorneys representing all 14 men, charged that they were "kidnapped" because they were arrested without arrest warrants in Maryand and brought into the District for arraignment.

Lawrence, however, declared that the law provides that anyone arrested within 100 miles from where warrants are issued can be taken to the nearest available United States commissioner and ruled that he was the nearest available commissioner as far as he knew at that time. The warrant in question was supposedly a search warrant for the 46th st. address issued by Commissioner F. Archie Meatyard, jr., in Bethesda.

5 Arraigned in Bethesda

Commissioner Lawrence set April 13 as the hearing date for those who are not to appear April 12.

All were freed in $1500 bond each.

Five men were arraigned before Commissioner Meatyard in Bethesda, all charged with violating the lottery laws. They were released in $1500 bond each pending a hearing at 10 a.m. next April 8.

The men are Murray H. Olf, of 3701 Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor; William S. Doyle, of 1956 Biltmore st. nw; Sidney F. Frischer, of 2225 N st. nw; William Cohen, of 1667 Good Hope rd. se, and Lee Lewis, of 3612 39th ave., Colmar Manor. All were arrested at the Statewide News address.

Fay called a press conference shortly after 8 p. m. at which time he stated the special grand jury investigation of gambling "has proven successful" but so far has been of limited scope.

By this, Fay said, he meant that only a few of the known gambling spots in the Metrooplitan area were hit in yesterday's raids.

"Racketeers are operating openly here," he said, "and have been hijacking each other."

Fay said gamblers' messengers taking money across the District line have been robbed by opposing racketeers.

"But there have been no complaints to police," he added, "because the racketeers prefer to settle their differences with their own brand of law."

Promises 10 Days of News

Fay declined to say what further action he planned against the gamblers, but earlier when reporters had pressed him for details about the raids, he had said enthusiastically:

"We're going to feed it (information) to you for 10 days solid."

As a result of the grand jury investigation, Fay said, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has collected more than $300,000 in delinquent income tax payments from known gamblers in this area.

Earlier Fay had said he had asked Western Union to stop service on 26 tickers to alleged gamblers. Last night he said there are 24 such "ticker drops" operating in Prince Georges County, one in Arlington County, but none in the District or Montgomery County. The twenty-sixth ticker, he added, is a baseball ticker leased to one gambler.

Phone Company Comments

A spokesman for the C. & P. Telephone Co. last night reiterated a company statement of its willingness to cooperate with law enforcing groups. He said:

"The service is furnished subject to the condition that it will not be used for unlawful purposes. Service will not be furnished if any law enforcement agency acting within its jurisdiction advises (the company) that such service is being used or will be used in violation of the law, or if the telephone company receives other evidence that such service is being so used."

FCC Report Used

A Federal Communications Commission report on the use of telephone and telegraph wires to disseminate gambling information, made in 1944, located a Western Union race horse "drop" in the 46th st. house.

Fay had a frigid "no comment" when asked why police had not been invited to participate in yesterday's raids.

There was little comment on the subject from police officials, from Maj. Robert J. Barrett, the superintendent, on down.

"What raids?" asked Barrett.

"The raids the United States Marshals made this afternoon."

"Where?"

"One of the places was at 427 10th st. nw., the one you discussed with Captain Covell this morning."

(The reporter started another question; Barrett interrupted.)

"I have no comment to make. Period. That's all."

When Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad which normally makes gambling raids in the District, was called he said he did not know of the raids until reached by telephone by a bondsman who wanted to know where the prisoners would be taken.

Saw Nothing Wrong

Capt. Covell had talked to a reporter shortly before the raids were made and was asked about the newspaper publicity given a suspected betting establishment at 427 10th st. nw., one of the places raided during the day.

"I have made routine checks on this place continually," he said, "since I became captain of this precinct last April. I was in the place this morning. I did not see anything wrong. The man has cigarettes, cigars and magazines for sale.

"A customer came in and bought a pack of cigarettes while I was there, but certainly he wouldn't try to make a bet in my presence. This is one of the places in my precinct that I have not been able to get yet, but I will continue to try."

After the raids, Covell was again called and asked if he had further comment. "No," he answered, "I'll stand on the statement I made this morning."

A tipoff on how the United States Attorney's office put the State-wide Sports News Distributors in Colmar Manor on the suspect list was obtained by a reporter who examined the search warrant issued by United States Commissioner F. Archie Meatyard, jr., in Bethesda.

The informant, it said, had placed several bets at the newsstand, at 427 10th st. nw. on January 6 and had watched closely while the man telephoned in the bets. He was able to see that the number dialed was WArfield 6600. A check of the telephone company led investigators to the Colmar Manor place.

Fay disclosed that he had retained the services of three former FBI agents, all of them now in private law practice, to make the investigation and lay the groundwork necessary for the raids. The three are Daniel L. O'Conner, Downey Rice and James R. Sharp.

Praises Mrs. Wildrick

He said they were employed as "special consultants and experts." In the planning, Fay said, he also leaned heavily upon his own staff and even borrowed workers from the Justice Department.

Fay singled out for credit Mrs. Edith Wildrick, who was transferred from his office to an office in the Justice Department where she did all the paper work necessary in preparing the mass raids.

"She did a crackerjack job," said Fay.

"We did most of our work at night," said Mrs. Wildrick.

"We worked night and day," corrected Fay with a grin.

ODDS AGAINST IT—This room, elaborately equipped with leather upholstered chairs, bar stools, a radio, and what police said was a four-window horse-betting cage (at left), was raided by marshals on the second floor of State Wide Sports News Distributors, 3701 Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, Md. The room also included a blackboard well insulated the top men are from the men who work for them we soon learned. You obviously could never place a hit with any of the top men, the major backers.

Fay's Statement on Arrests In Gambling Investigation

I have been informed by the Internal Revenue that they have already closed many cases in which there was no possibility of criminal prosecution but where gamblers have been induced to pay back with penalties hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The pattern here is similar to other areas. In New York, the control is in New Jersey. In Chicago, there are the Cicero and Gary, (Ind.) centers. The individual joint is always serviced by centrally located headquarters.

24 Ticker Drops Found

Here, we found 24 ticker drops, or headquarters, in Prince Georges County and one in Arlington. But, the whole city of Atlanta has but three, and Norfolk and Richmond have one each.

In this area, we found only one racehorse ticker in each of the drops, although one had an additional baseball ticker.

In order to operate effectively as a bookmaker, it is necessary for one to have accurate instantaneous information from the tracks. And the horserace betting setup goes hand in hand with the numbers set-up.

I would like to point out, that as far as legitimate race horse betting goes, it is a legalized localized proposition and these bookmakers here cause a loss and a detriment to the tracks, the District and the Federal Government.

The bookmakers need up to the minute odds and the results on all races at tracks all over the Nation.

"Borderline Case"

There are no tickers in the District as a result of a policy established by the ticker companies around 1935 or 1937 when telephone and telegraph companies were called into this office and asked why they shouldn't be prosecuted. It was at least a borderline case, but nevertheless, there were no illicit ticker drops within the 10-mile confines of the District of Columbia. Apparently, they did not think it healthy to operate drops here with Congress sitting at least part of the time.

The majority of the places are in Mount Rainier, Colmar Manor, Silver Hill and Hyattsville. But there is nothing in Montgomery County, where a 10-cent bet can get you a year. Montgomery County is a clean county so far as this operation is concerned.

The ticker drops were often fronted with beautiful set-ups, often bungalow type homes, and with air conditioning. We had a plant nursery and a barbershop, also.

Two Sources of Information

Information is furnished the gamblers here in two ways. Two-fifths of it comes from the Howard Sports Daily in Baltimore, Md., and the rest from the State Wide Sports News Distribution people.

Howard gets his information from the Continental News Service which is a Nation-wide organization.

In State-wide, there was an organization known as Automatic Devices, Inc., which has purchased and received monthly since this investigation started, 1,250,000 numbers tickets a month from one manufacturer alone.

Admittedly, every person under oath who testified on the question, said that there was no other purpose for which these tickets were used.

However, that number out there is only a small part of all the tickets purchased anad received in this area.

Emmet Warring receives a similar amount to that of Automatic Devices, and we have the records of the manufacturers who shipped them. There are nine manufacturers, including three major ones making numbers tickets, whether they be called numbers tickets, K-books, or "salesbooks."

I show you here pictures of 25 places which are or were locations for tickers within the last year.

There are better than 400 places in the District operating in conjunction with the tickers. They have a wide variety of fronts being used, some in conjunction with legitimate businesses.

Examples are newsstands, restaurants, flower shops, valet shops, pool halls, beer parlors, private residences, hotels, real estate firms, construction companies and others almost too numerous to mention.

Daily Collections

And there are many independent bookies who lay off their large bets to the syndicates. There are daily collections in Government departments, office buildings, apartment developments, hotels and, of course, labor unions.

Obviously, with such a broad scope of activity, it was necessary for the grand jury to limit its scope to a few places which would illustrate the different types of operation.

The grand jury consulted with a few experts with wide experience in the investigative field. We had an additional limited number of borrowed personnel — and it was very limited, I assure you.

They were successful in developing information resulting in the issuance of 15 arrest and nine search warrants, and additional persons were arrested while the crime was being committed continuously in the presence of deputies who made the raids.

Landlord May Be Charged

In addition to the raids, we have notified the telegraph company to discontinue all service to 25 ticker locations. And the telephone company has been notified of 300 telephones used for gambling businesses here.

We will continue to ferret out and curtail these operations, using every means at our disposal. We will contact people who are housing gambling joints and request them to deny use of the premises to gamblers. If we can show that the landlord has knowledge that a particular place is used for gambling, he can be charged as a principal for aiding and abetting.

We will notify the Commissioner where licenses, such as hacking and poolroom licenses, are being used in gambling. The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is being notified where it appears that gambling occurs.

The evidence we have obtained today will be presented to the grand jury Monday.

Finally, we wish to thank the many citizens who have helped us. This is not said as a sop, but we hope that many others will furnish us information as to gamblers.

To show the roughness of the job, in the few cases we had today, it took 35 marshals to conduct the raids.

We are investigating other cases, and the investigation is not at an end.

Raids Climax Long Inquiry

tempts to squelch gambling were thwarted for years because the numbers racket and horse-race betting were controlled by gamblers with headquarters outside the District.

The grand jury was given authority to call witnesses from anywhere in the country, without respect to State lines.

Less than two weeks before the grand jury opened shop, police supplied Fay's office with a list of 138 names of "big-time" gamblers operating in the Washington area.

Police also submitted lists of 28 persons allegedly connected with "interstate phases" of gambling here and of 23 persons on a "national list" with local affiliations.

Barrett Asked to Appear

At the same time, an exchange of letters between Fay and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett precipitated a controversy over the role of Metropolitan Police in the gambling investigation.

Barrett offered the services of members of the Police Department on "two hours' notice," and asked for an opportunity to appear himself before the special grand jury.

The United States Attorney declined the offer of special investigators—on grounds that the grand jury should decide its methods—but ranking police officers and vice squad members later testified before the grand jury.

As soon as the "heat" was definitely on, two days before the special grand jury launched its drive, the Washington gambling fraternity "buttoned up" tightly and confined its operations to "known" customers.

Numbers Writers

"Medium size" gamblers—in the $1000-a-day scale of business—were first reported to be leaving town. They were followed by those in higher brackets—at about $5000 a day—until numbers writers were left stranded on street corners for want of "pick-up" men to appear to collect wagers.

One of the highlights of the grand jury's persistent review of testimony came after a double shooting at the Brass Rail Cafe, 1739 7th st. nw.

Charles H. Nelson, 1803 H st. ne., night manager of the cafe, and Henry M. (Piggy) Leake, 194 R st. ne., were charged with shooting each other when Leake hammered on the door of the cafe last January 8, demanding to see Roger W. (Pop) Simkins.

The Government contended Leake blamed Simkins for a decline in his numbers business.

District Court Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut directed acquittal of both defendants after a 7-day jury trial, in which conflicting testimony and lack of evidence were cited as reasons for the verdict.

Pyramid Club Case Delayed

A hearing of the Government's charges that Daniel A. Thomas violated District gambling laws in his pyramid club operations was postponed for a week in District Court yesterday because no one appeared for the prosecution.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut put off the case of the 28-year-old bricklayer when he learned that Mrs. Grace Stiles, assistant United States attorney, was busy before the grand jury.

Thomas has said he founded the now-crumbling pyramids in the District.

Thomas, who lives at 81 Hawaii ave. ne., showed up at 10 a. m. in the courtroom. With him, were three lawyers and some friends and relatives. But no one was present from United States Attorney George Morris Fay's office.

Judge Schweinhaut sent a court officer upstairs to learn the trouble. He was told that Fay had assigned Mrs. Stiles to the case, but that she was presenting another case to the grand jury.

Thomas' lawyers said they thought the judge should dispose of their motion for dismissal of the indictment right away. But Judge Schweinhart said that could wait until next week, too.

Area Red Cross Drives Reaches 89.04 Pct. of Goal

The Red Cross announced at a report luncheon yesterday that campaign contributions of $822,724.77—or 89.04 per cent of its $924,000 area goal—have been turned in to date.

Two major campaign units soared past 100 per cent of their respective quotas yesterday. Residential workers reported gifts of $76,711.81, or 108.04 per cent of quota, and City Division solicitors announced $35,201.85 in donations, or 100.58 per cent of quota.

Barrett Directive Stresses Courtesy

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett yesterday ordered all precinct commanders to give their men a weekly five-minute pep talk on courtesy.

In a directive on courtesy, Barrett said, "We have a job to do but there is no reason it cannot be done politely though firmly."

Barrett said the number of complaints of lack of courtesy on the part of policemen have been increasing.

"One form of complaint being received," he said, "is about the summary arrest by officers for minor traffic violations when a traffic violation notice could as well be issued."

The police chief also asked that visitors to Washington be treated with courtesy.

Auto Dealers Ask New Rules On Resales

The public should be insured prompt payment for automobiles sold to used-car dealers, the National Capital Used Car Dealers Association said yesterday and urged the District Commissioners to adopt regulations to that end.

The association agreed to a report issued Friday by the Better Business Bureau that an incerasing number of persons have left their automobiles with used-car dealers for resale and have been unable to obtain their money.

These practices, however, the association asserted, are carried on by only one or two dealers in the city.

"We canvassed our members today," the association said, "and wish to announce that the practices complained of by the Better Business Bureau are not engaged in by our people."

Francis Winn, president of the association and owner of Winn's Motors, said the association wants the public to know that its members are not guilty of the practices alleged by the BBB and that these members, identified by association insignia, can be relied upon.

These dealers do not condone the practices complained of by the BBB, he said and believe it will work to the best interests of the used car industry and the public for the Commisisoners to provide adequate regulations to cope with the situation.

Miss Bentley Lauded for Court Service

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senate District Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), yesterday voiced warm praise for the public service career of Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley, now a voluntary patient in St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

But he joined with House District Judiciary Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) in suggesting that the question of her retirement should be treated separately from the question of staffing juvenile court with two judges. One is now authorized.

A District Bar Association committee has been informed that Judge Bentley is beyond hope of recovery sufficient to permit her to return to the bench. A bill drafted by the Bar Association, now in the hands of the Congressional District Committee, would set up the two juvenile court judgeships, leaving Judge Bentley in one of them through her term, which runs to August 12, 1952.

There is no provision in the present Juvenile Court Act for disability retirement, and bar officials said it was not clear whether Judge Bentley could draw civil service retirement pay at the end of her term.

McGrath and Harris have introduced the bar association bill but they made clear it may not be their final answer to the problem.

Senator McGrath said he strongly favors giving Judge Bentley the benefit of retirement pay. He said he had been informed it was possible the President could order her retirement and that she would be eligible for retirement pay, but that this prospect had not yet been fully explored.

"Judge Bentley has not only done a good job in the District," said Senator McGrath, "but she has also done a lot of good for many of the States, including my own, in assisting the development of sound juvenile court work."

Short Story Contest Has $100 Prize

IN KEEPING with its purpose of assisting young American artists, the Washington Chapter, National Society of Arts and Letters, yesterday announced the offer of new scholarships in short-story writing, drama, designing and ballet. These awards, totaling more than $1000, are added to the list of established annual music and art prizes, which last year went over the $14,000 mark.

Of special interest to literature students in the Washington area colleges will be the short-story contest ending May 7. First prize will be $100 with a second award of $50.

Judging the work will be society nonmembers, Margaret Landon, author of "Anna and the King of Siam"; Maj. Andrew Geer, USMC, whose short stories have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, Colliers, Redbook and the American; and Mr. Lewis L. Moneyway, director of the Studio of Short-Story Writing here.

Mrs. Jesse Frank Nicholson has sent applications to the English departments of colleges here. The contest was devised by a special literature committee headed by Mrs. Nicholson. Assisting her are Mrs. Cornelius V. Whitney, Mrs. Carl A. Spaatz, Mrs. Helen Woodbridge Williams, and from the Washington Junior Chapter of NSAL, Mrs. Mary Augusta Rodgers Schoen. Students may obtain additional information or application blanks by writing to Mrs. Nicholson at 6603 Strathmore st., Chevy Chase, Md.

The club will also offer a scholarship valued at $550 to the Parsons School of Design in New York City.

The ballet scholarship of $150 will be awarded to a promising student at the Washington School of the Ballet here. Competitions are now being scheduled by a club committee in cooperation with Miss Lisa Gardner, who with Miss Mary Day, heads the school.

The drama scholarship of $200 will be awarded for continued study at George Washington University, and the competition will be held there among dramatics students now enrolled at the institution.

Young Designer Proves Clothes Make the Model

By Peggy Preston

FASHION took a new slant yesterday.

When Philip Robertson, young Washington costume designer, showed his newest collection of hats and gowns in the Conversation Room of the Salle de Champagne, the women who wear his clothes pitched in and served as models. And mighty fine ones they are, too.

There was, for instance, Miss Bertha Josephs, she of the proverbial fedora, modeling a white straw chapeau, banded in blue taffeta, and sporting a saucy bow and blossom! Was she actually going to forsake her trusted, soft brimmed felt?

"Why certainly," answered Model Josephs. "This is my hat!"

Mrs. John R. Steelman, blond and dainty, won a round of applause when she modeled a softly draped black and red print afternoon frock. A scene stealer was striking Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg in a basic black dress which she topped with a series of dramatic hats, including a lacy cinamon toast straw, and one that was a froth of white flowers and veiling.

IN THE debutante division cunning Miss Peggy Boyer wore a pale blue brocade taffeta evening gown, with matching blue chiffon stole. Miss Gwendolyn Fairlamb was gowned in a black crepe splashed with red roses, and last year's deb, Miss Betty Jane Harrell wore a handsome white satin brocade cocktail suit with white plumed theater hat. Others lending their designer a helping hand were Mrs. Gardiner Luce, Miss Bonnie Marzel, Miss Nan Garcia, Mrs. Seymour Jeselsohn and several more.

The room, one of Washington's newest dining spots, was ideally suited for the intimate, informal modeling party. Large, roomy sofas and chairs, grouped around the room, added to the complete comfort and relaxation of guests who clapped their approval as models moved around the room. Subdued music emanated from the large grand piano in the center of the room which was laden with hats, and feminine spectators were invited to try on any that they wished.

Among the guests were Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. Lorton Sims, Miss Emma Perley Lincoln, Albert Lilienthal, Mme. Camille Chautemps, and Alex Clayton, the artist whose paintings are currently being exhibited in the Conversation Room.

Always Forgive

My darling, we have made mistakes . . . And we have both been wrong . . . But somehow we have always had . . . The grace to get along . . . And that is the important thing . . . When all is said and done . . . Because we love each other and . . . There is no other one . . . When you are sorry and the tears . . . Are trembling on your cheek . . . I love you so intensely that . . . I cannot even speak . . . And when I whisper to your soul . . . That I am sorry, dear . . . I hear your heart forgiving me . . . With sentiment sincere . . . So let us go through life and give . . . The sacrifice it takes . . . And let us always be prepared . . . To overlook mistakes.

Guild to Give Auto Show

There is a group of women in the Nation's Capital, 135 in number, who, instead of playing bridge in their spare time, volunteer their services for social welfare work.

The Service Guild of Washington, as the organization is called, was organized 10 years ago to function as a volunteer, nonsectarian social service organization. Its original program was devoted primarily to projects affecting child welfare and the underprivileged, although today it has grown larger in scope.

In order to aid its many charities, the guild is sponsoring an "Auto Show" when new 1949 models of all the leading makes will be auctioned during the evening. The show will be at 8 p. m., April 7, in the Shoreham Hotel.

Listed among the activities of the guild are the typing classes at the Florence Crittenton Home where girls are prepared for business careers; entertainment once a week for the children from the Industrial Home; Tuesday afternoon get-togethers with servicemen at Walter Reed General Hospital when members play cards and provide refreshment for the patients (every other month the guild sponsors a ward party with entertainment and a supper).

At the Service Guild Craft Shop, where tickets to the "Auto Show" can be obtained, a group of members serve volunteer hours where hand-sewn, hand-painted, monogrammed and personalized gifts may be purchased. The proceeds of the 3400 Connecticut ave. shop finance some of the guild projects.

Ask Anne

Do you have a recipe for cream mints? I understand that it is pulled like taffy and then cut and stored in tins. It mellows or creams with age. V. E. F.

Pulled Mints

1 tablespoon light corn syrup
⅛ teaspoon peppermint flavoring

Combine sugar, water and corn syrup in saucepan over heat. Stir until sugar is dissolved, then bring to boil. Cover and cook two minutes. Uncover and cook to 265 degrees F. on a candy thermometer, or until it forms a ball, which just begins to crack when hit on the edge of a glass. Remove from heat and pour into greased platter. Cool and pull until stiff. Cut into pieces and drop into powdered sugar in can for several days before using. Extreme care should be taken to not stir the syrup during boiling or before being poured into platter. Stirring might cause it to crystallize.

Do you know a recipe for orange muffins that are rolled (or dotted) with orange rind and granulated sugar? V. E. F.

I'm not sure that this is just the exact recipe you have in mind, but here is one way to make orange muffins: Use loaf sugar, broken into small pieces and dipped into orange juic. To give the more distinctive orange flavor you could add grated rind of the orange to this. When the small lumps of sugar are moist, sprinkle it with the grated rind over the unbaked muffin batter in the muffin pans. As it bakes, the sugar melts and forms a nice topping. Another way to make orange muffins would be to place one teaspoon of orange marmalade in each muffin pan which previously was filled 1-3 full of batter. Add the remaining batter on top of the marmalade and bake as usual.

About Mints That Mellow

I accidentally dyed two pairs of nylon stockings too deep a shade. How can I get a lighter shade, the color itself is all right? E. C.

Since nylon does not absorb dye readily, washing the hose through several suds and rinsing thoroughly will probably fade them enough to make them just the right color.

How does one launder bath towels at home without their becoming boardlike? E. C.

Rinse the bath towels thoroughly to be sure that all soap is removed. Wring them just as dry as possible, and before hanging give them several brisk shakes. Shaking while wet will do more to fluff them than any amount of shaking and pulling if allowed to dry first. Of course, drying out of doors on a breezy day is the ideal way to soften and fluff them.

I think I read in your column some time ago a mention of a powder which mixed with water and beaten up, made meringue. If there is such a product, and you know of it, or can find out about it, I should very much appreciate information as to its name and where it can be obtained. E. H. K.

The powder referred to is called just meringue powder and is used by bakers in making their meringues. I know of no place this powder is sold retail in small enough amounts for individual use.

I've got a beautiful gray wool sweater that I washed some time ago and haven't been able to use it since. I hung it on a hanger after it was washed and after drying it looked the same as the "New look." What can I do about making it short again? B. L.

It may take several washings and dryings, but you should be able to return the sweater to its original length by doing this: After washing it, lay it to dry, on a flat surface which has been covered with several layers of newspapers. On top of the papers place a white cloth. Now, lay the sweater flat, patting and easing it into the desired length. Leave flat until dry. Sweaters which are loosely knitted should not be hung to dry, they should always be dried flat to avoid stretching.

Red Cross Needs Volunteers for Handcrafters

Men and women with a flair for handicraft are needed to serve as Red Cross arts and skills workers in various Federal hospitals, says Mrs. Bruce Roberts, chairman of the Arts and Skills Service for the District Red Cross.

"We're especially anxious to fill vacancies at Bolling Air Force Base and the United States Soldiers' Home," she said. "The men at Bolling are very much interested in leatherwork, textile painting—somebody might even want to do a hand-painted necktie—and other crafts which we take around to them in the wards."

The program at Soldiers' Home has been in operation less than a year, but already requires six additional volunteers. "You should see the kick some of those elderly men get out of weaving rainbow-colored scarves, or making pocketbooks and other gifts for their children and grandchildren," said Mrs. Roberts. "Some of them have never before had such a hobby, and they get real joy out of discovering their hidden talents."

All volunteers for the Arts and Skills Service receive thorough training from experts in the various crafts that they may be requested to teach. Work in the hospitals is during the day only, no night or weekend classes being permitted by hospital regulations.

Mrs. Roberts has asked that persons interested to call her at the District Red Cross Chapter House, Republic 8300, Extension 762.

Late for Bazaar Chest of Gifts Yet to Be Sold

A red lacquer bridal chest has just arrived from China, filled with treasures, fans, pins, jewel-mounted evening bags, jade boxes, carved wood trays and other fascinating articles.

Because it came three months too late for the Chinese Christmas bazaar, Mme. Koo, honorary chairman of the Washington Committee for United Service to China; Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, bazaar chairman, and others on the local committee have decided to hold a spring sale at the Washington Club on Thursday, April 7. It is to be an all-day sale, starting at 10:30 in the morning.

The need is so great for American-supported charities in China that Mrs. Brooks felt it imperative that funds from the sale be forwarded at once to the American Bureau for Medical Aid, the American-Chinese Committee for Mass Education, the Friends Service Committee, United Boards for Christian Colleges in China, the China Aid Council, Church World Service and Indusco, the seven cooperating agencies of United China Relief.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Club Member Pyramids Tip Into Cigar

He came in off the street through the front door of the exclusive Metropolitan Club, and was greeted by an attendant.

"I'd like to get a special delivery stamp," he explained. The attendant hesitated. "Are you a member, sir?"

"No, I'm not," was the reply. The attendant shook his head. "I'm sorry, sir, but I'm afraid . . . you see, the facilities of the club are . . ."

In the background, a club member had overheard the conversation. He stepped forward and said, "If you'll allow me, perhaps I can help. I'll get the stamp for you."

With that he strode off, got a special delivery stamp, and returned to offer it to the stranger. The latter dug in his pocket, came up with a quarter, and said: "Thank you. Buy yourself a cigar with the difference."

The obliging Metropolitan Clubber, one of the richest men in town, looked at the quarter solemnly, and replied:

"Thank you, I will. But I'm afraid I'll have to put 40 cents to this, to do it."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two female cats, 6 months old; good mousers and accustomed to children." (Adams 1163.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. R. C., Falls Church, Va.: Publication of justifiable, constructive criticism of the organization you mention would probably result in improvement. But I'm sure you don't expect me to indict them on the word of an anonymous correspondent.

DUBIOUS DISTINCTION

Herbert Rubman of 445 Jefferson st. nw. is probably our first Pyramid Club casualty.

Herb was getting a haircut the other day from a barber who had just joined a club. The barber was talking a blue streak about his anticipated profits.

He got so enthused and excited about all the money he was going to make that he cut Herb's ear.

MOTORISTS, BEWARE

J. A. Hartman of 8502 48th ave., Berwyn, Md., identifies the policeman as Pvt. E. L. Cave.

District Liner Hartman charges that Officer Cave runs a one-man speed trap, and warns motorists who pass 121 Riggs rd. ne. to keep a sharp eye peeled for a hidden motorcycle cop.

What's worse, says the complainant, is that Officer Cave also hides on the other side of the District Line—at 14 Riggs rd.—which is in Maryland. From that vantage point, he nabs District-bound motorists as soon as they cross the line into Washington.

District Liner Hartman asks: "What is a District policeman doing, lying in wait in a Maryland speed trap?"

He adds: "Cave has arrested me twice. The first time I saw him behind me, I checked my speedometer and saw that I was going 35. He charged me with doing 4[illegible] and when I asked how much collateral I'd have to post, he replied in a discourteous tone: 'Go down to the station and find out for yourself.'

"The next time I saw him following me, I was doing 30 miles per hour and immediately slowed down to 25. He charged me with doing 40, and instructed me to follow him to the station. He drove at 30 miles an hour all the way to the station."

Francis S. Browne, owner of the property at 14 Riggs rd., on the Maryland side of the line, says he has never given Officer Cave permission to hide there. Mrs. Julia J. Talbott, next door at No. 12, reports that she's continually annoyed by the bleating of the police radio on the parked motorcycle, and by its thunderous roar every time Officer Cave starts after an unwary motorist.

When I asked Pvt. Cave for comment on these practices, he declined to say anything except: "You'll have to ask my superiors about that." So I did.

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Traffic Division, promised an immediate investigation of these complaints. He said:

"We don't believe in speed traps, and instruct our men to stay out in the open, where their presence will deter lawbreakers. As for an officer hiding on the Maryland side of the line, he has no business in Maryland except in the fresh pursuit of a felon."

DULCET DELIVERY

You say you bet I'm from the South?
I've such a southern drawl?
Why, man—I don't say "Hush your mouth,"
Or "Honey, how y'all."

But you insist my speech is slow
And drips with honey dew.
Now that sweet talk, you oughta know
Is extra-spesh for you.

If you prefer a southern miss,
Then I'll concede with joy.
Yes suh, I'm from the South; that is
From southern Illinois.

E. Culbreth

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vinson Soothed Truman Temper

By Drew Pearson

Insiders credit wise Chief Justice Fred Vinson for the meek and mild way his friend Harry Truman came back to Washington from Key West.

Vinson

It was the sagacious Chief Justice, they say, who sat on the beach there during the days when the President was receiving his worst defeats and gently gave him counsel about how to get along with Congress.

Vinson is one who believes you can't win a fight with Congress by losing your temper. So, while loafing on the beach at Key West he diplomatically got across his ideas on Congressional - Presidential teamwork. The President listened, and came back a soothed man.

General Vaughan Scores

Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's jovial military aide, was out of luck when it came to a United States loan to his admirer, Dictator Peron of Argentina. However, it looks as if Harry had quietly scored an interesting victory close at home. Milton Kronheim, jr., a Washington liquor dealer and close friend of Vaughan's, has been appointed a Municipal Court judge for the District of Columbia.

One interesting angle about this appointment is that during OPA days, one of the biggest black-marketing fines ever paid was by Kronheim and son the very same liquor dealers. They paid $200,000, though Senators Wherry of Nebraska and Ferguson of Michigan said it wasn't enough and raised cain because they did not go to jail.

Now, the son, Milton Kronheim, jr., who was in the liquor firm at that time, has been appointed to a Washington judgeship.

Government officials have long wondered why Vaughan took such an interest in the liquor business. During food-saving days when the distillers were on a tight grain ration, Vaughan had the nerve to call up the office of Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson and demand in stentorian tones that the whisky dealers' grain quota not be cut.

However, the Kronheim family and associates contributed $15,000 to the Democratic Party in the last campaign, with only $100 to Dewey. And when Kronheim, jr., a likable young man, came before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator Ferguson, his old critic, did not object.

Note—Kronheims also furnish liquor for Democratic shindigs.

Michigan Scandals

Some significant campaign contributions have cropped up in Michigan as a result of the Senate Election Committee's probe of Senator Homer Ferguson. On October 12, this column revealed some sensational facts regarding the sudden manner in which the Tucker automobile probe was dropped like a hot potato by Ferguson, who at that time headed the Senate's most important investigating committee. A little over $17,000 was paid by Tucker to Mrs. Dudley Hay, then Republican National Committeewoman from Michigan and secretary of the GOP National Committee.

At that very moment Ferguson had investigators in the Tucker plant in Chicago making a thorough probe and was reported ready to hold public hearings. But on May 9, 1947, Mrs. Hay came to Washington, called Ferguson's secret phone number which few people had; then, again in Washington May 15-16, again called the Capitol several times; returned to Washington again June 1 and called Ferguson's private number twice.

$3000 Returned

Meanwhile Senate investigators have interviewed Mrs. Hay in Romeo, Mich. She has refused to say whether any of the money paid her by Tucker helped finance the 1948 campaign of Senator Ferguson and other Republicans. Mrs. Hay admits she and her husband received the money, but explains it was paid by Tucker for an appraisal which her husband made of the Tucker auto plant. Mr. Hay is not an engineer, nor has he had any established experience as an industrial appraiser.

Mrs. Hay also revealed to investigators that Tucker later gave her six additional checks totaling $3000, made out to the Republican Finance Committee of Wayne County, Mich. The checks, each for $500, were signed by six different men, whom Tucker described as his Chicago business associates.

By this time, Senator Ferguson appeared to be getting worried. For Mrs. Hay informed Senate investigators he demanded that these six checks be returned to Tucker. This she did.

Significantly, Mrs. Hay took the trouble to deposit the $17,400 Tucker originally gave her, not in Michigan, but in a bank in Clarksburg, W. Va. The Senate investigation of the Ferguson election is continuing.
